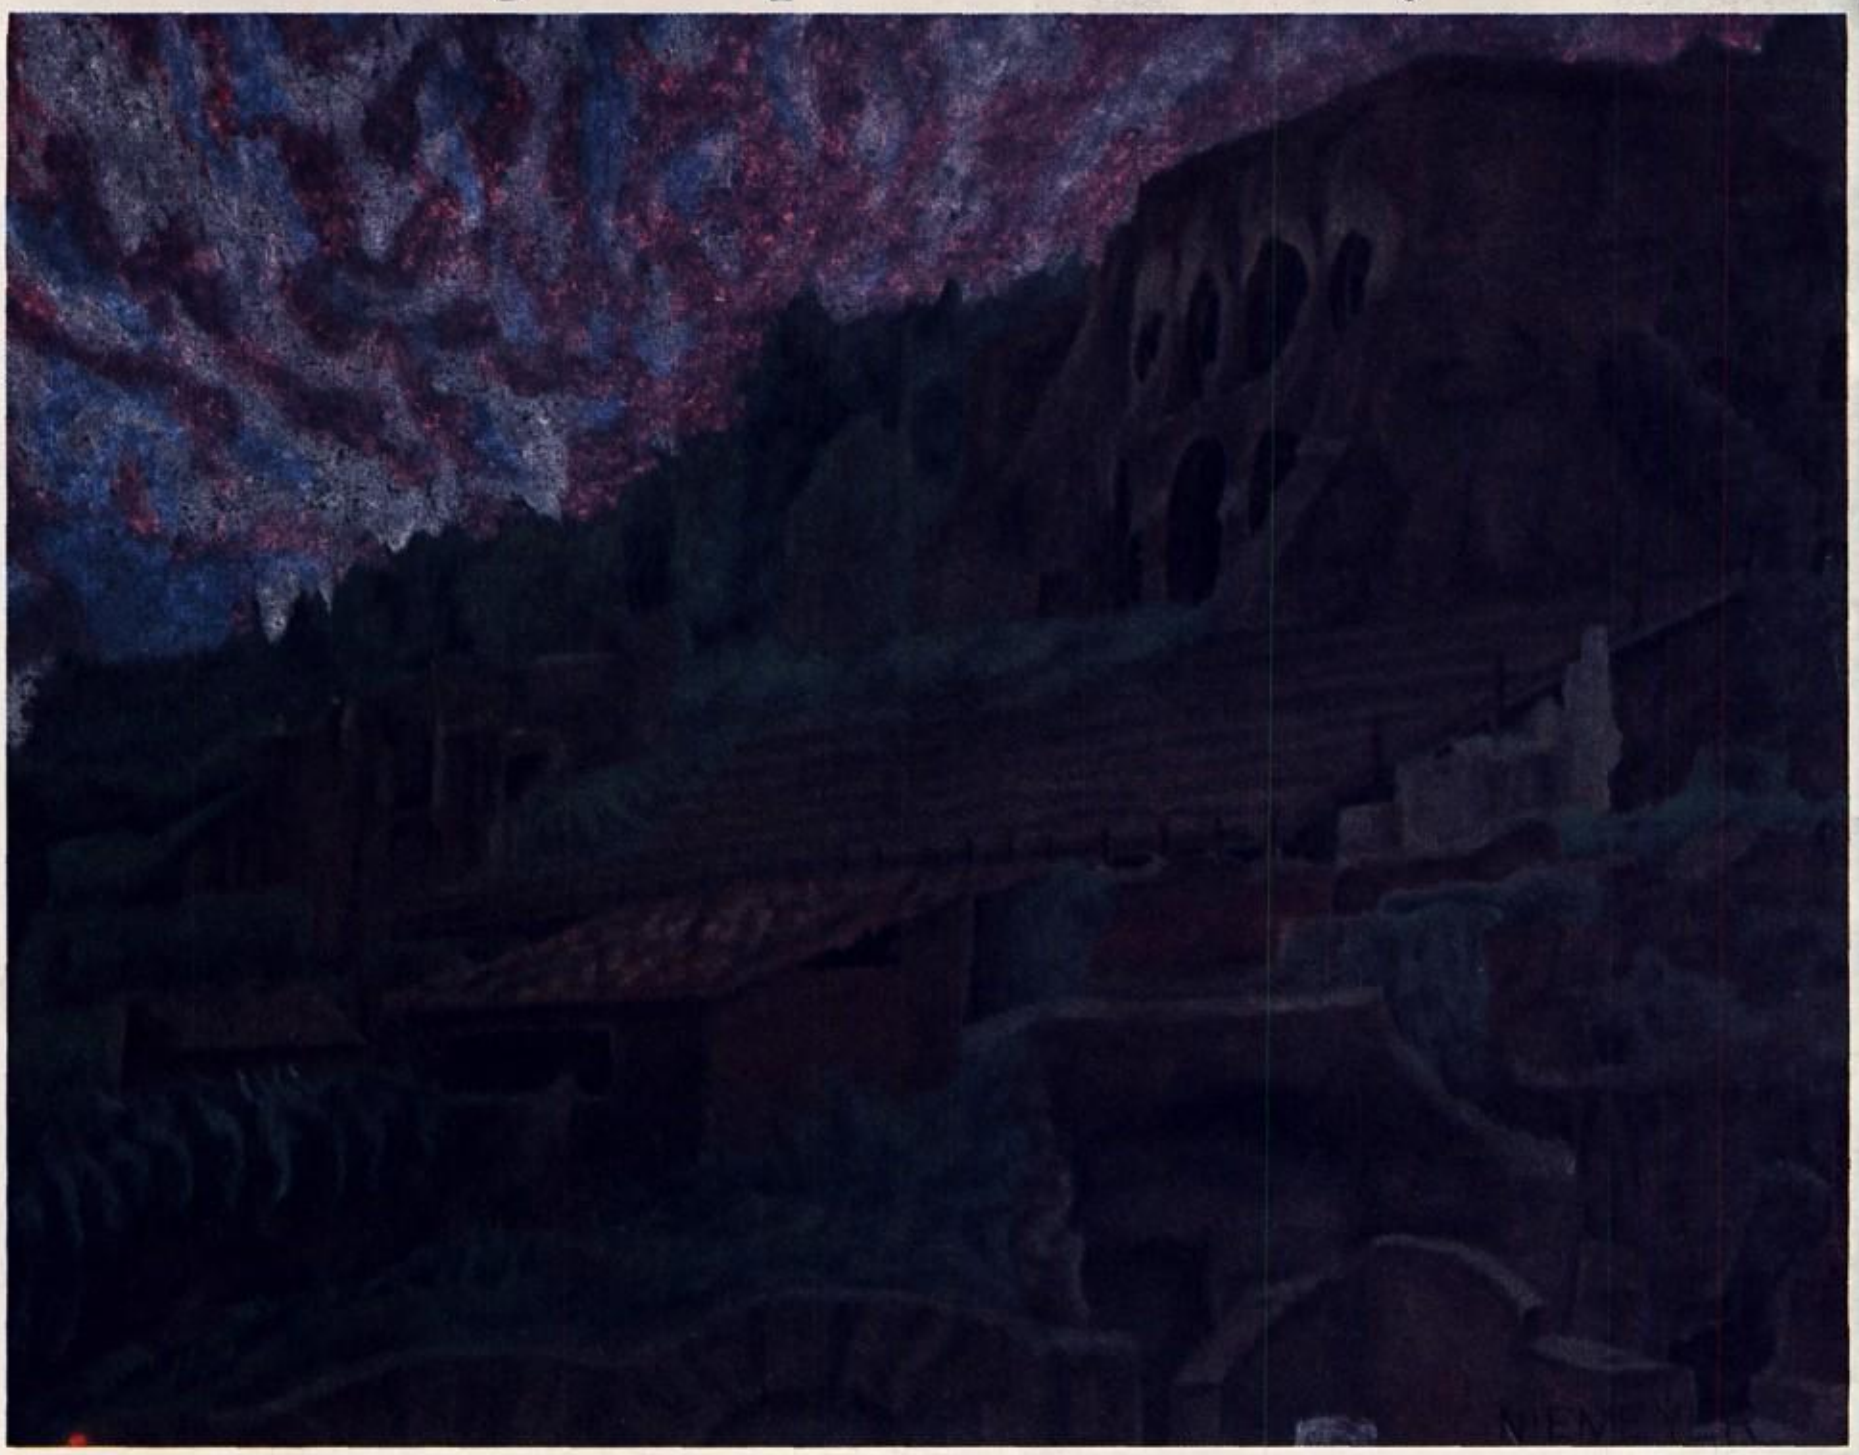
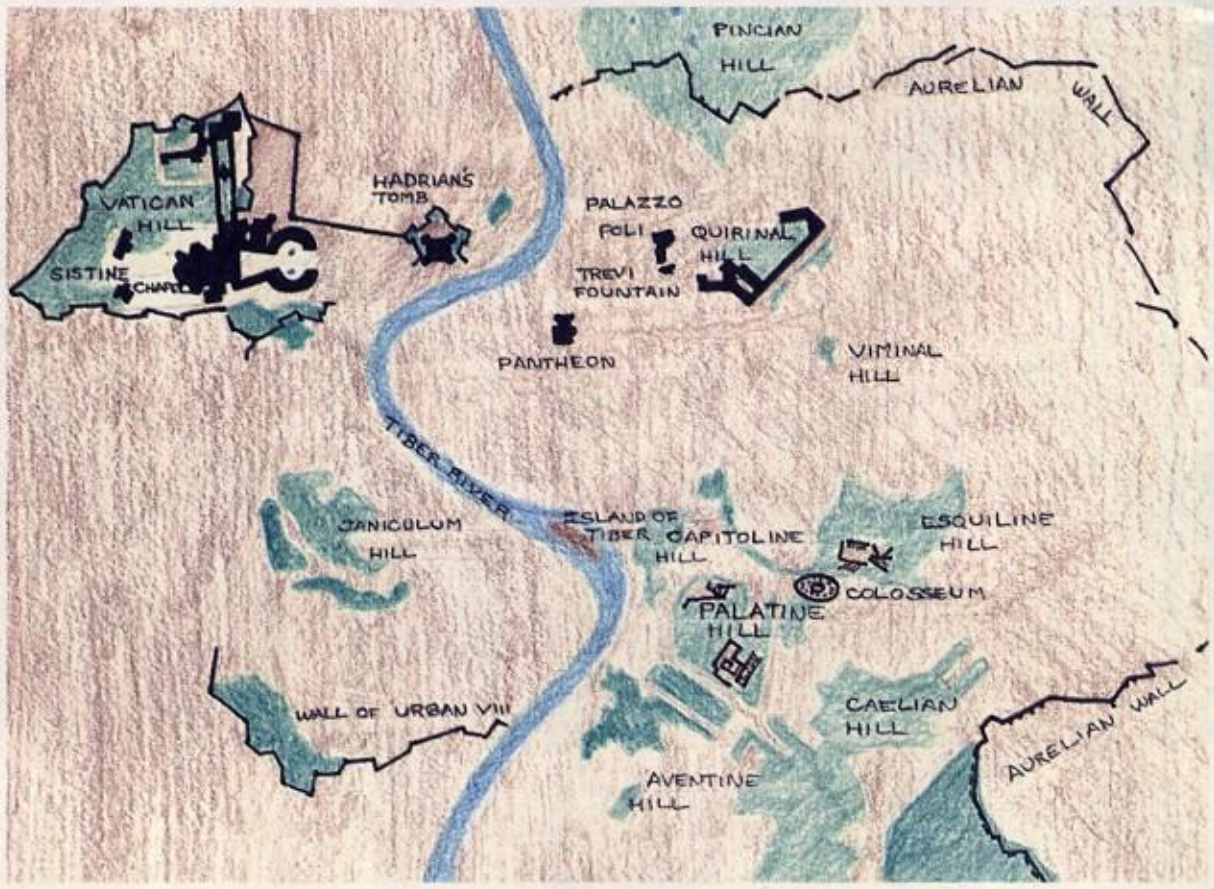
Palatine High keeps its over 100 year name

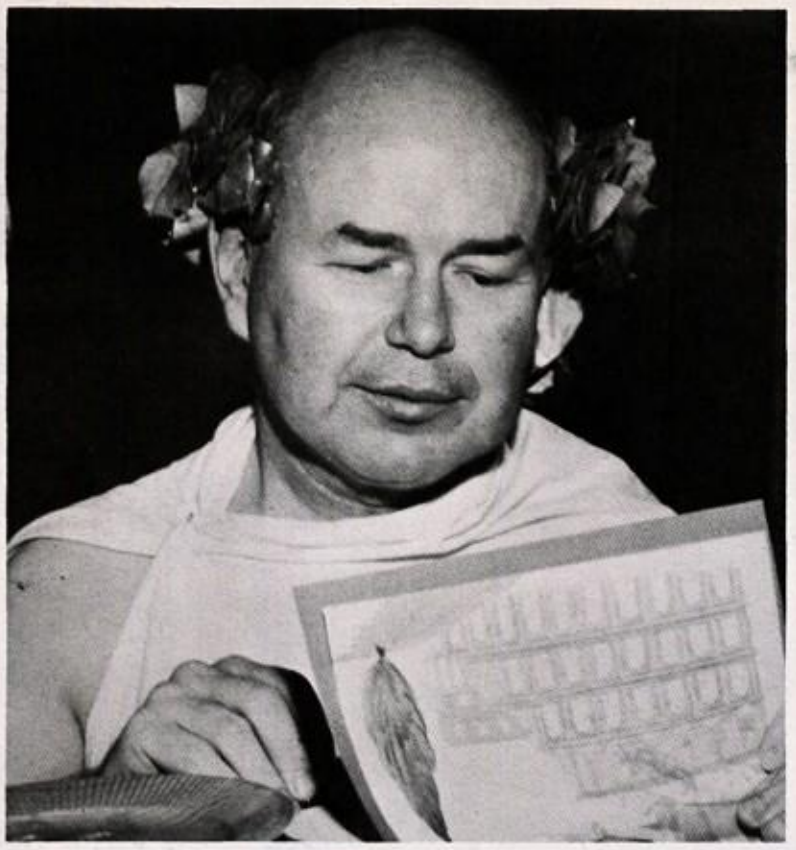


When Palatine High students and alumni last year pushed to have the Palatine name move with them in September 1977, they talked of its heritage of 100 years, but they were dealing with a name with even far more reaching roots.

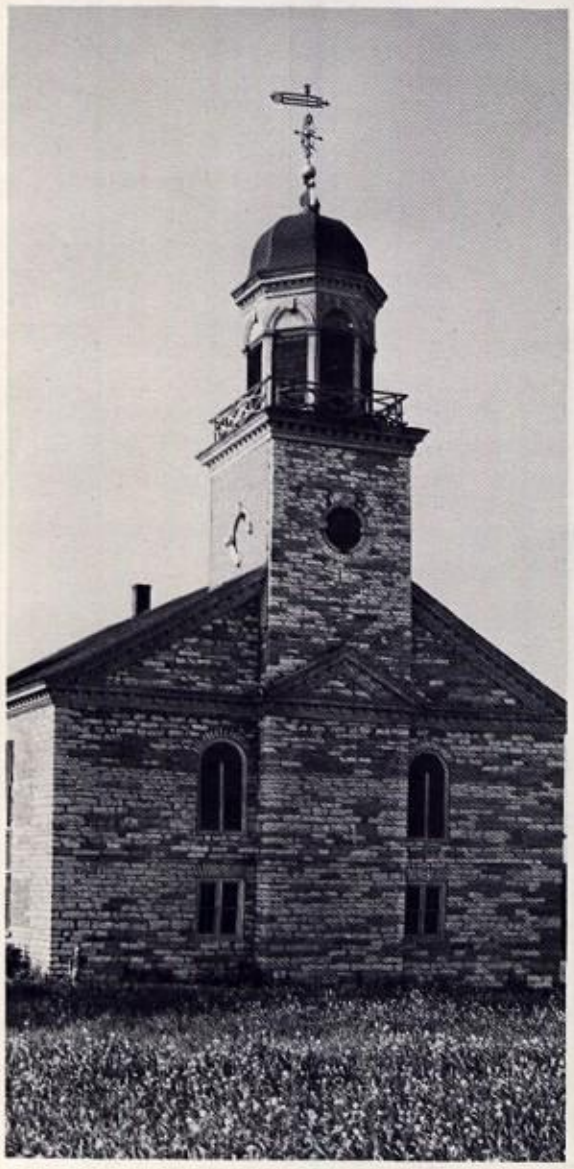
The name had come to the school from the village, incorporated in 1855, and from the township in 1850 after the state had ordered the organization and naming of six mile square townships. The name had reached the township by way of New York, and the New Yorkers had taken it from the Palatinates who had settled the Mohawk valley. And those Germans — is it too far fetched to believe that their name had come from the first hill of Rome, the Palatine?

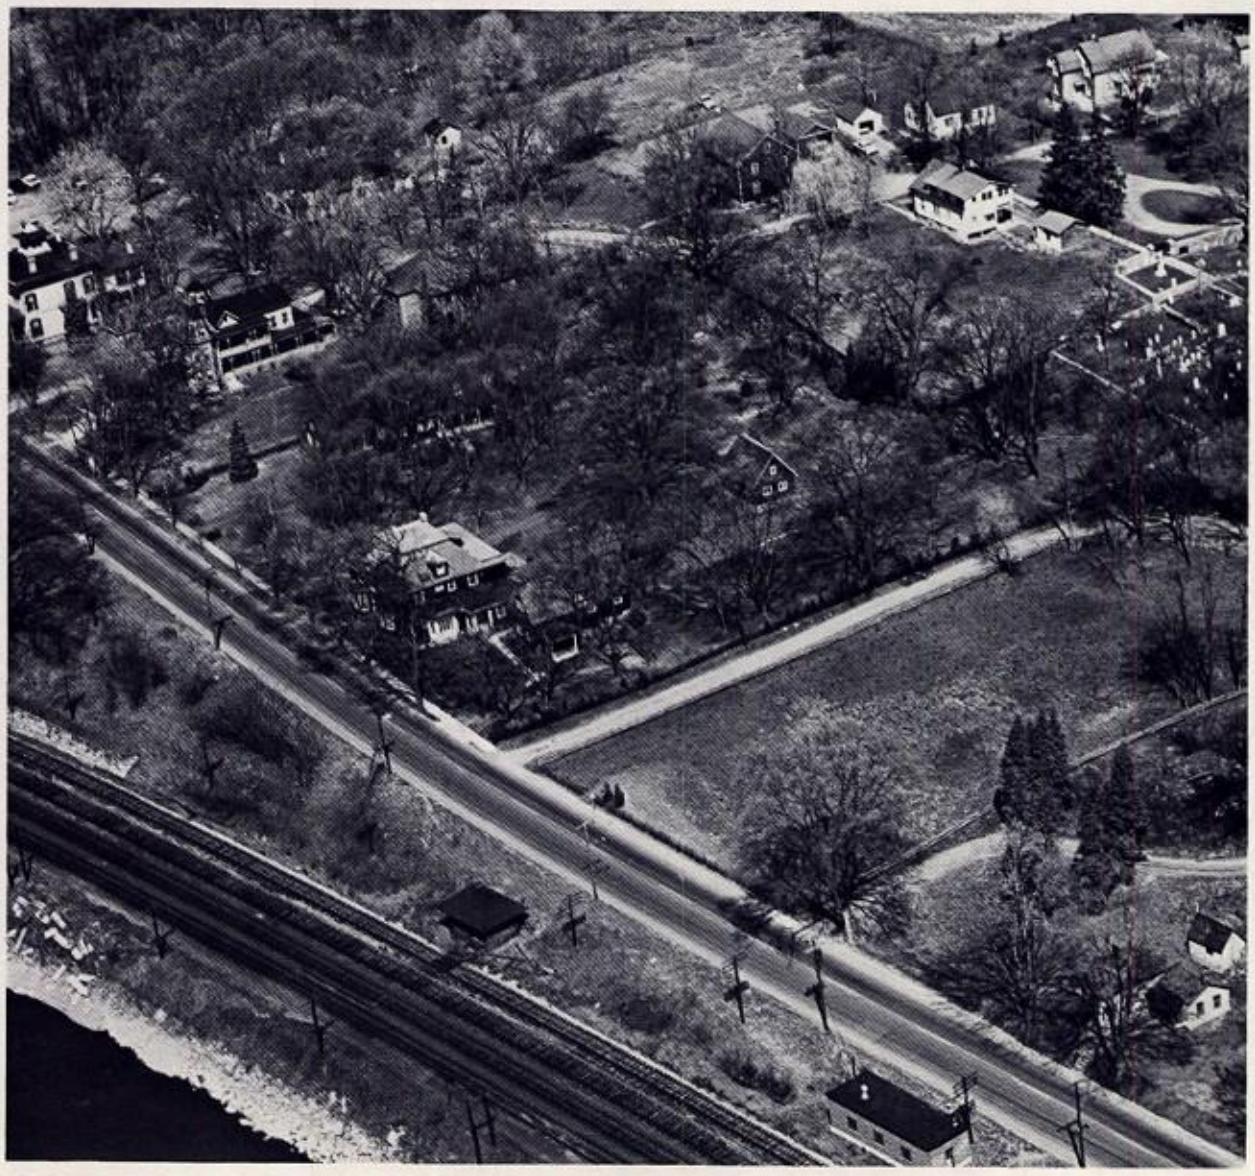
The 1976 Spotlight traces the heritage of a proud name and a school using the simple format of early yearbooks and touching as many alumni as possible.

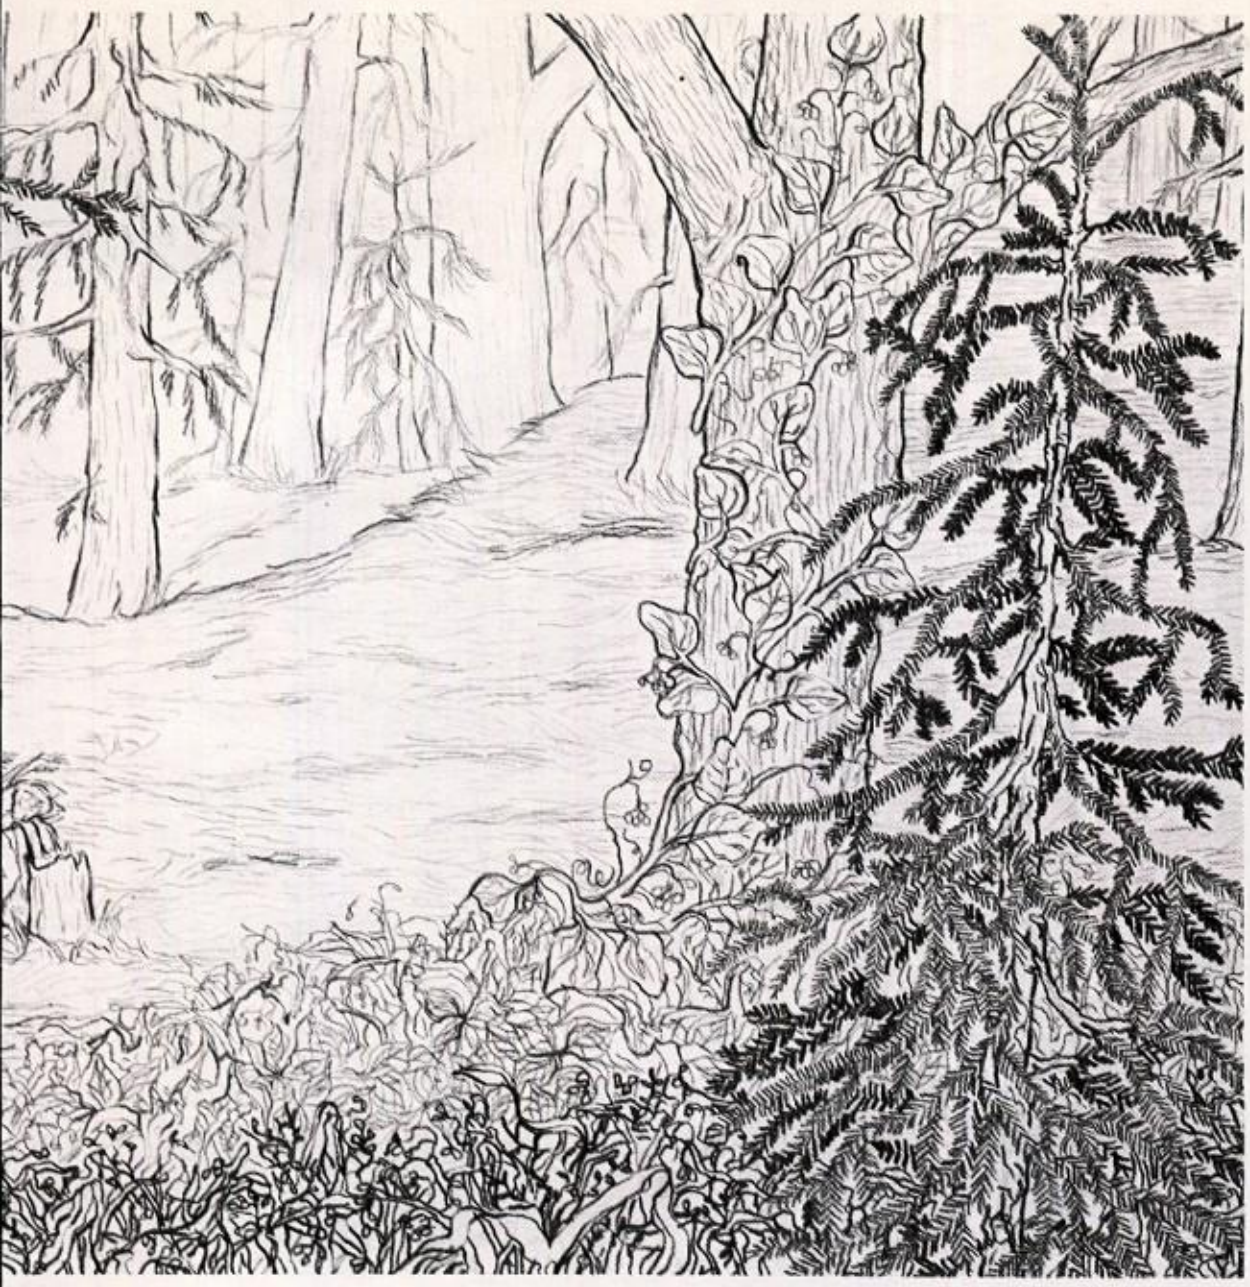




From the day Mr. Cutting said, "We shall study Latin," Palatine students have known a kinship with Rome. Fred Niemeyer's conception of the first hill and Steve Wilson's map locating the seven hills of Rome appear on the opposite page. The three hills not in the original seven are the Vatican, Janiculum and Pincian. ABOVE: Mr. Mills banqueting at a Saturnalia in 1962 and Lisa Watson displaying the school flag with its crest showing the hills of Rome. The crest was designed in 1935 by Leighton Mangels under the watchful eye of Pieter Vervloet, teacher of manual arts. The flag was designed in 1958 by Darlene Tatge. LEFT: Robb Miles' conception of a Palatinate scene.







With the founding of Rome, so goes the legend, the first hill, soon to be known as the Palatine, was the choice site for private residences. Augustus built his palace on the Palatine and began the palace system that claimed the hill. Older even than Rome is the rootword PA, meaning to protect and nourish, and a high military officer of the emperor became a Palatine.

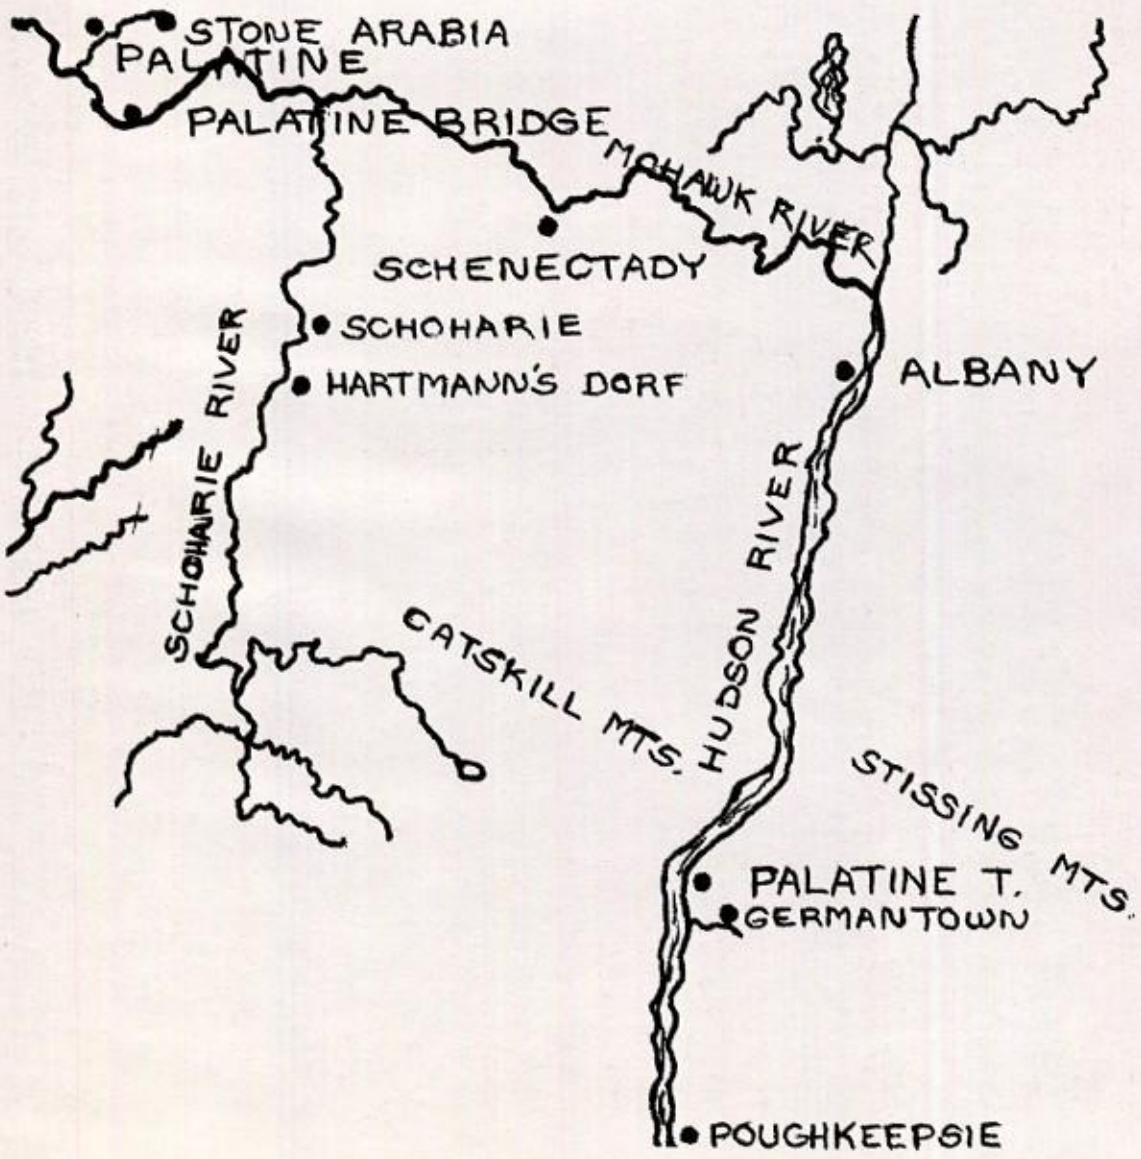
And the name traveled north to an electorate of the Holy Roman Empire, to a fertile area west of the Rhine where the administrator or ruler of a royal territory became known as a Palatine and the area was a Palatinate. Soon the people of this area were known as Palatines and they prospered.

Later buffeted by wars not of their making and suffering persecution because they were Protestants, the Palatines were ready to try the good life in the new world as promised by England in propaganda scattered along the Rhine. The Palatines sought refuge in England and help in getting to America. They were naturalized English citizens before they sailed for America, but they were not treated as such.

Palatines began to arrive in New York in 1708; and where they settled, they left German names.

Unhappy with the unkept promises and the unproductive land given to them, they moved in 1712 and 1713 to the Schoharie, where they survived with help from Indians. There is a story that Indians of the Schoharie had given land on the Mohawk to English Queen Anne for the settlement of the Palatines. These people suffered greatly in England and New York, but in the Mohawk valley, they cleared land, built houses, schools and churches of logs, built mills and factories, raised cattle and made cheese. As they prospered, they built frame and stone structures. They lived in peace and prosperity for 40 years.

Palatines became solid farmers and good soldiers when they were needed, and they were not the ones to leave New York after the Revolutionary war. It was their name that travelled to northern Illinois.



The drawing depicts a spot along the Mohawk as Kathi Orr thinks it must have looked when the Palatines reached the Schoharie area. A land of marsh and Indians

While the Palatines along the Mohawk were fighting for their lives 200 years ago, that area to be known as Palatine, Illinois lay virgin prairie and marsh land dotted sparsely with groves of elm, oak, plum and apple. It was home for the buffalo and white tailed deer, a stopover for waterfowl. It was home of the Potawatomi, last of the Indian tribes in the state of Illinois.

Then 200 years later, Palatine High made obeisance to history. A Bennington flag flew daily in front of the school and on the football field for games. The Betsy musical set the tone in September even before David St. John, 1970, in revolutionary garb shot off his musket at the first home game. Williamsburg movies were shown; two tours of Chicago architecture were made; and students became interested in the historical society.

Orchesis had a Yankee Doodle number, and V-show was slightly irreverent with its bicentennial moments. Symphonic band touched the country's musical heritage in money raising concerts for its trip to Washington, DC for two Memorial day concerts.

Home economics gave a fashion show, and a cantata compiled by Mr. Trimborn was presented by band and choir May 26 and 27 in Cutting hall with Kenneth Anderson, theater professor at the Fox Valley center of the University of Wisconsin narrating.

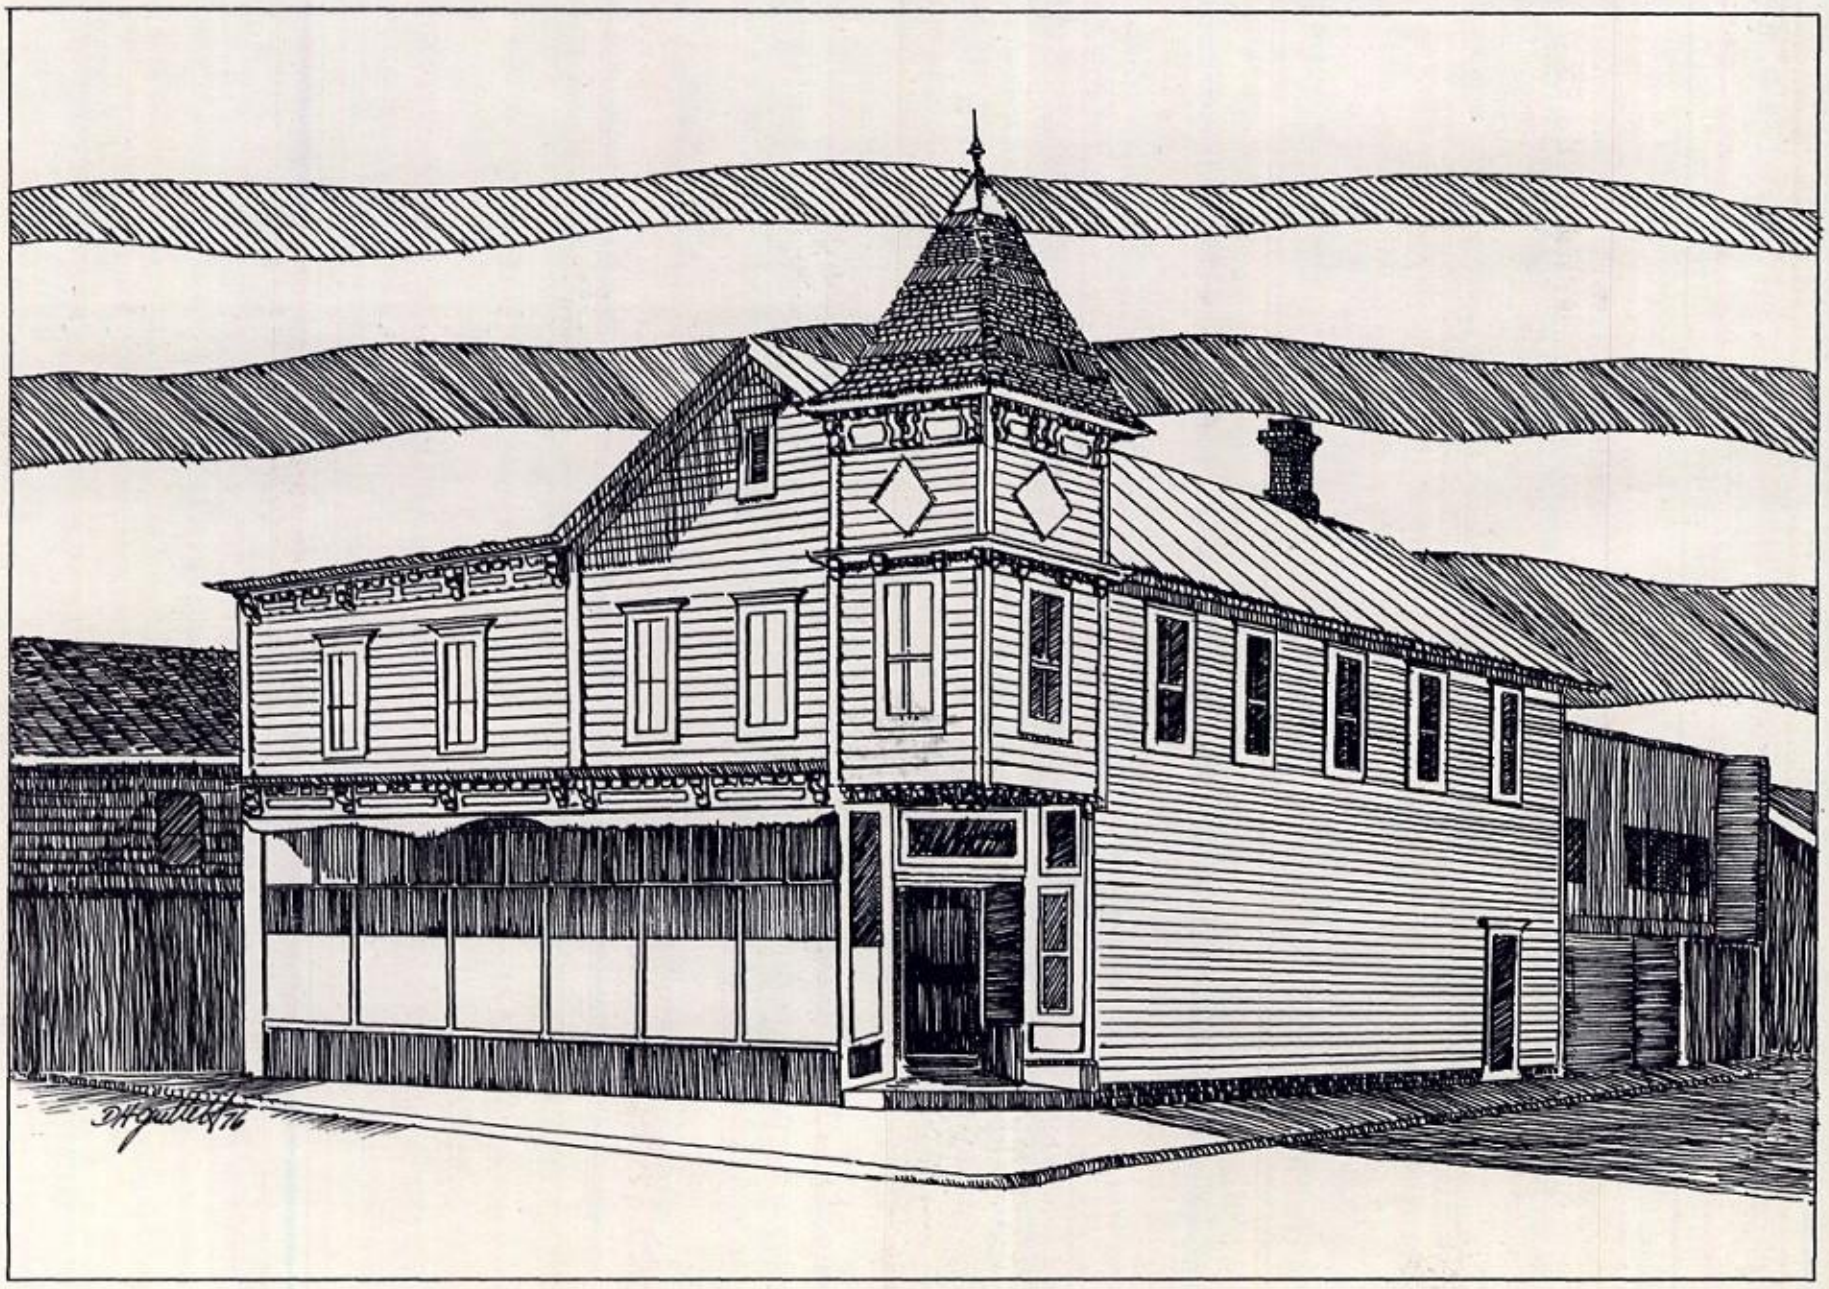
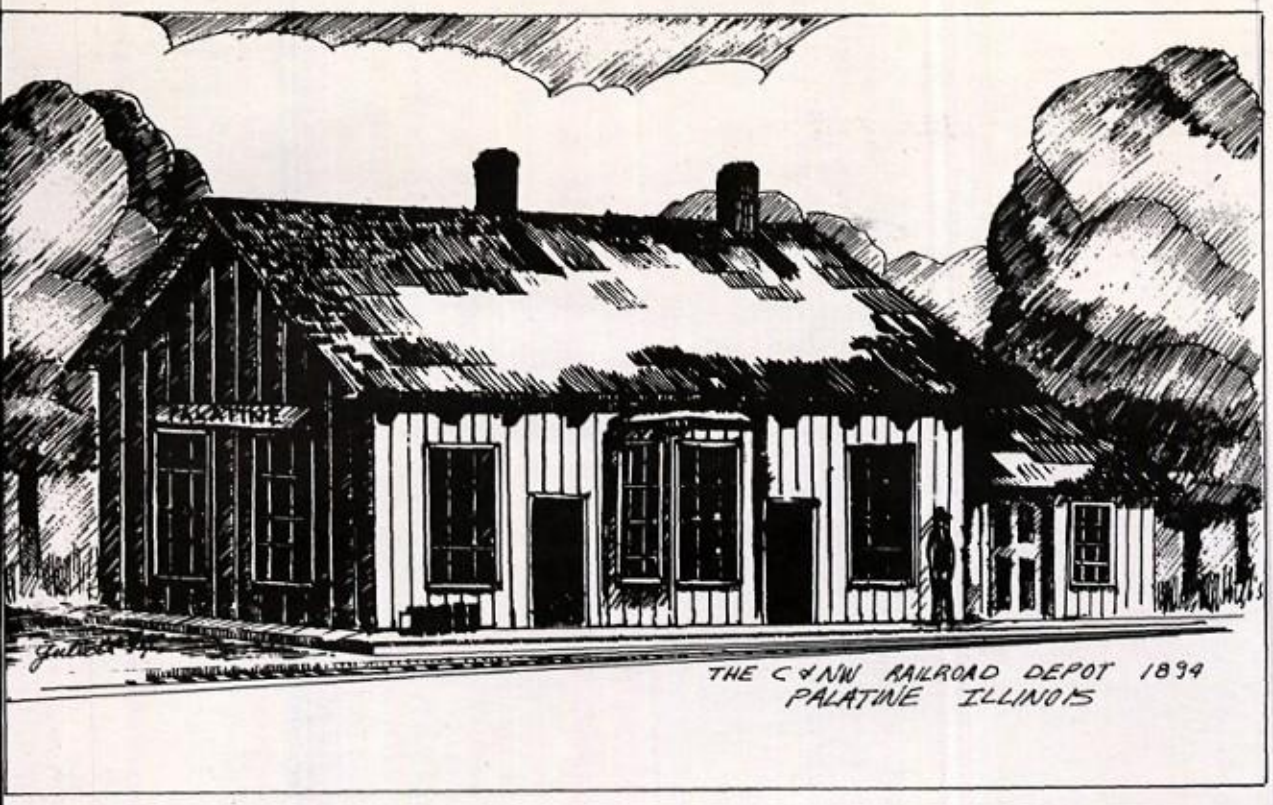
Buildings become school life landmarks

Not every generation knew all of these buildings, but for someone at sometime they hold memories. RIGHT: The Patten home built in 1898 by Charles H. Patten, founder of the Palatine National Bank. BELOW: The grist mill of Abelman & Co. The drawing of the Schoppe store as many knew it until it burned in 1970. The general store which later went into dry goods and clothing was built in 1892. The drawing is by David Gullett, 1971.





With the Black Hawk war over, 8000 Indians gathered in Chicago to be dealt with by the Great White Father. After nine days of useless talks, the Potawatomis, Chippewas and Ottawas knew that they must leave the land between Lake Michigan and the Mississippi and go west. This was in 1833. In a year the Indians were gone, and settlers, chiefly English, came into the Palatine area.

George Ela, the first, settled his family in Deer Grove in 1835. The Ezekiel Cadys, also from New York arrived in 1837. The first teacher in the area was Nancy Boynton of New Hampshire in 1838.

The settlers found a country of unbroken prairie crossed by Indian trails. Prairie hen and quail were plentiful and so were deer and wolves. The settlers took to the groves that dotted the prairies. Englishman's Grove, named for the nationality of its settlers, had the Wilsons, Swicks, Atkinsons, Bradwells and Kitsons. The Wilsons were Irish by way of Schenectady, and the Bradwells and Kitsons were from England. They came in the 1840s. Englishman's Grove is now Inverness.

Vermont people in Plum Grove as early as 1837 came from Stockbridge, and among them were the Slades, Porters, Putnams and the Durkees. Carsons came from Scotland.

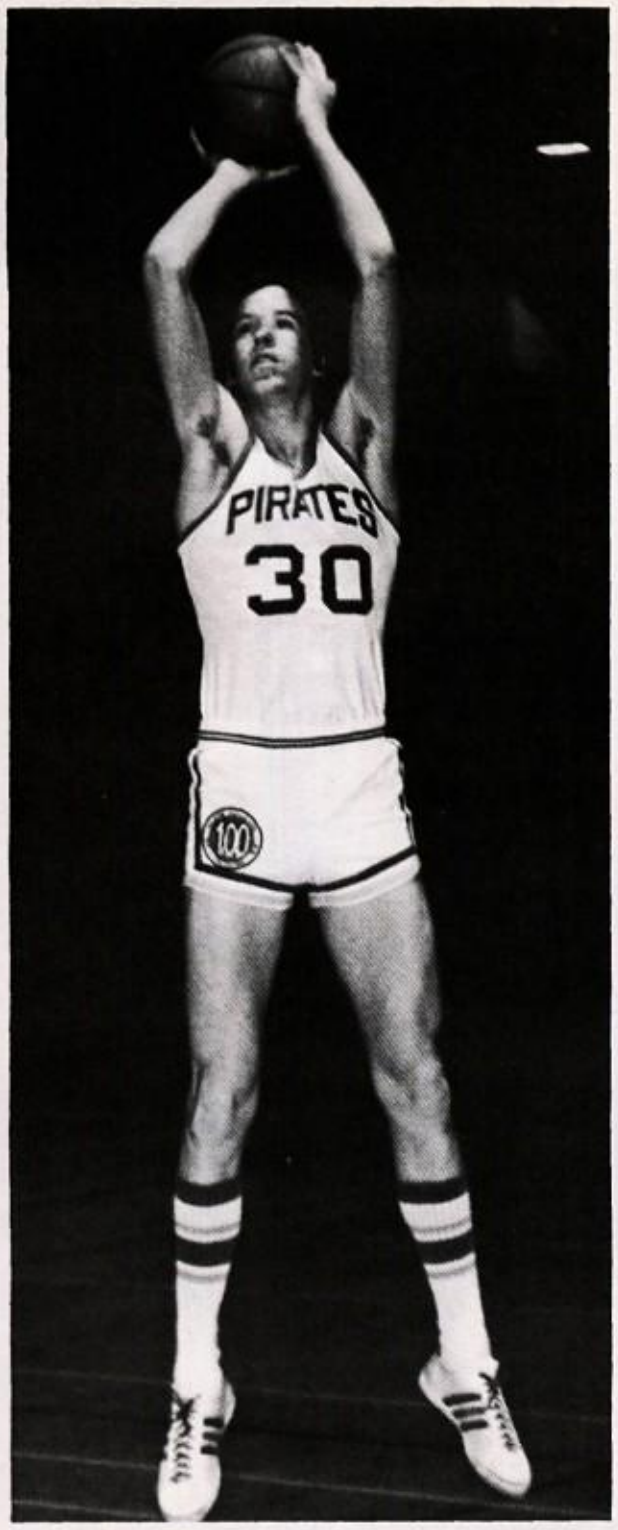
The little communities in the groves grew. Then in 1850 when the state ordered the forming and naming of townships, the men met to choose a name. Suggested were Yankton, Deer Grove, Marion and Palatine. Harrison Koch, a Swiss from Palatine, New York suggested Palatine. It won over Deer Grove.

When the railroad pinpointed a station stop in the middle of the township, the village came into being taking its name from the township. A proud name traveling long and far from the Roman hills had come to rest and grow.

Another Gullett drawing: the depot sat between Plum Grove and Bothwell until its 1971 move. This brick Methodist church was built in 1895 replacing a wooden structure of 1857. The Rev. William H. Smith was pastor. It was refurbished and rededicated to community use this year. The W. G. Ost home served as village library from June 8, 1958 until November 1975.

RIGHT: Queen Jamie Christopher brightening an already sunny homecoming. OPPOSITE PAGE: All highlights this year did not deal with the centennial and bicentennial. Some others were junior Kevin McKenna scoring the most in the MSL, Dawn Guthrie arranging carnations for distribution on Valentine's day, and choir's big moment June 1975 singing in Atlanta for Kiwanis International. Pictured are Frank McGee and Chris Burbidge standing on the bus on the way back to their dorms. But Mary Santy modeling the cap and gown chosen by the seniors was centennial. Mary, a member of choir and madrigals, was also in council. Both she and Jamie represented Palatine at the January rap session with the school board.

For the centennial, this mural, one of three created by art students, was chiefly done by Pete Lowe and shows the wit of a cartoonist as well as the work of an artist. He placed four pieces in the Scholastic contest and one went national. V-show used the past as a major motif, but Steve Hoey and John Crawford picking and strumming and Karen Hetzel applying makeup for an orchesis number were modern in an old fashioned way.



Centennial glows in color

Bicentennial was overshadowed at Palatine High by centennial, and the logo designed by Ellen Konsbruck appeared on athletic, band and cheerleading uniforms, blast jackets, notebook covers and official school stationery. Fred Niemeyer with school and bicentennial logos designed the village sticker.

Homecoming took the theme, "The Way We Were," and invited past coaches and players. Len Rohde, who played 15 years with the San Francisco 49ers, was honored.

The art department turned out two murals, and stitchery class centered Pirate Pete on a quilt. Home economics made a cookbook.

NHS had Mercie Heise, adviser to the 1936 charter group, assist with its induction, and all 1936 members were invited.

V-show made Mr. Cutting its central figure against a backdrop featuring the buildings in which Palatine High had been, and pop concert sang a medley covering Palatine's 100 years.

Show case displays, planned by Mrs. Fuller, featured each department. Business education showed the history of typewriters with the actual machines. The year closed with a display of yearbooks and commencement programs and the scarlet procession of the graduates.

Village history reaches the students

The name Joel Wood, so closely tied to Palatine High history, came from England through Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. The man Joel Wood came to this area in 1846. He bought 80 acres for $1.25 an acre. In 1853 he worked for the Chicago & Northwestern railroad constructing 4000 yards of embankement at 10 cents a yard and earned enough to pay off his land. He then bought an 80 acre section along the railroad line and had the railroad build its station on this tract. In 1855 he surveyed the village in lots, blocks and streets.

The railroad pinpointed the village, but the generosity of Mr. Wood established it. He gave two acres for a cemetery, two lots to the Methodist Episcopal society for a church and parsonage, a large school site, four lots to the Christian church and five acres to Pastor Elder Mullin and a site for a steam grist mill to B. A. Bailey. He also gave away several lots to individuals.

Family tragedies wore him down, and he left Palatine in 1870.

Palatine's German population came for the most part straight from Germany around 1855. They came in such numbers that German was taught, and the Enterprise had a four page German insert until World War I. Palatine became a closely knit community of English and Germans with an occasional other ethnic citizen slipping in until the growing suburban boom of post World War II.

Village history became important as these pictures show. Florence Parkhurst, who has held the historical society together in cardboard boxes, and Averry Wolfrum riding in Palatine High's homecoming parade as a pioneer woman at her spinning wheel and a village policeman. The costumes and props belong to the society, and they were advertising the need for a building.
The three story brick building known as the brick block stood on the site of the First Bank and Trust company. It was built in 1884 by H. C. Batterman. The Patten bank and stores were on the first floor. The upstairs halls were used for plays, dances, concerts and roller skating. Reading the library's microfilm of the Enterprise is Kurt Conway of the Spotlight staff. Ellen Konsbruck sketched from a painting the Winkelman farm, which was in the vicinity of Fremd high school. The dark study hall is Palatine high school in the grade school building with principal Butler in the back, and a continuation of that building's influence is seen in the call letters of Palatine's TV camera.

Although the space in front of school and cars have changed drastically in the past 15 years, the attraction to them hasn't. RIGHT: A car in 1960, as well as today, was often a necessity for getting to work or going places with friends. BELOW: Last year brought lengthened lunch periods, and shorter days for juniors and seniors. The main entrance was often cluttered with people taking advantage of a sunny day to go out to eat or leaving early for home or work. BOTTOM LEFT: Students relaxing on the large stretch of grass in front of the school, now covered by the newest addition. The tranquil scene of 1966 would be upset the next year by construction. BOTTOM RIGHT: The centennial logo.

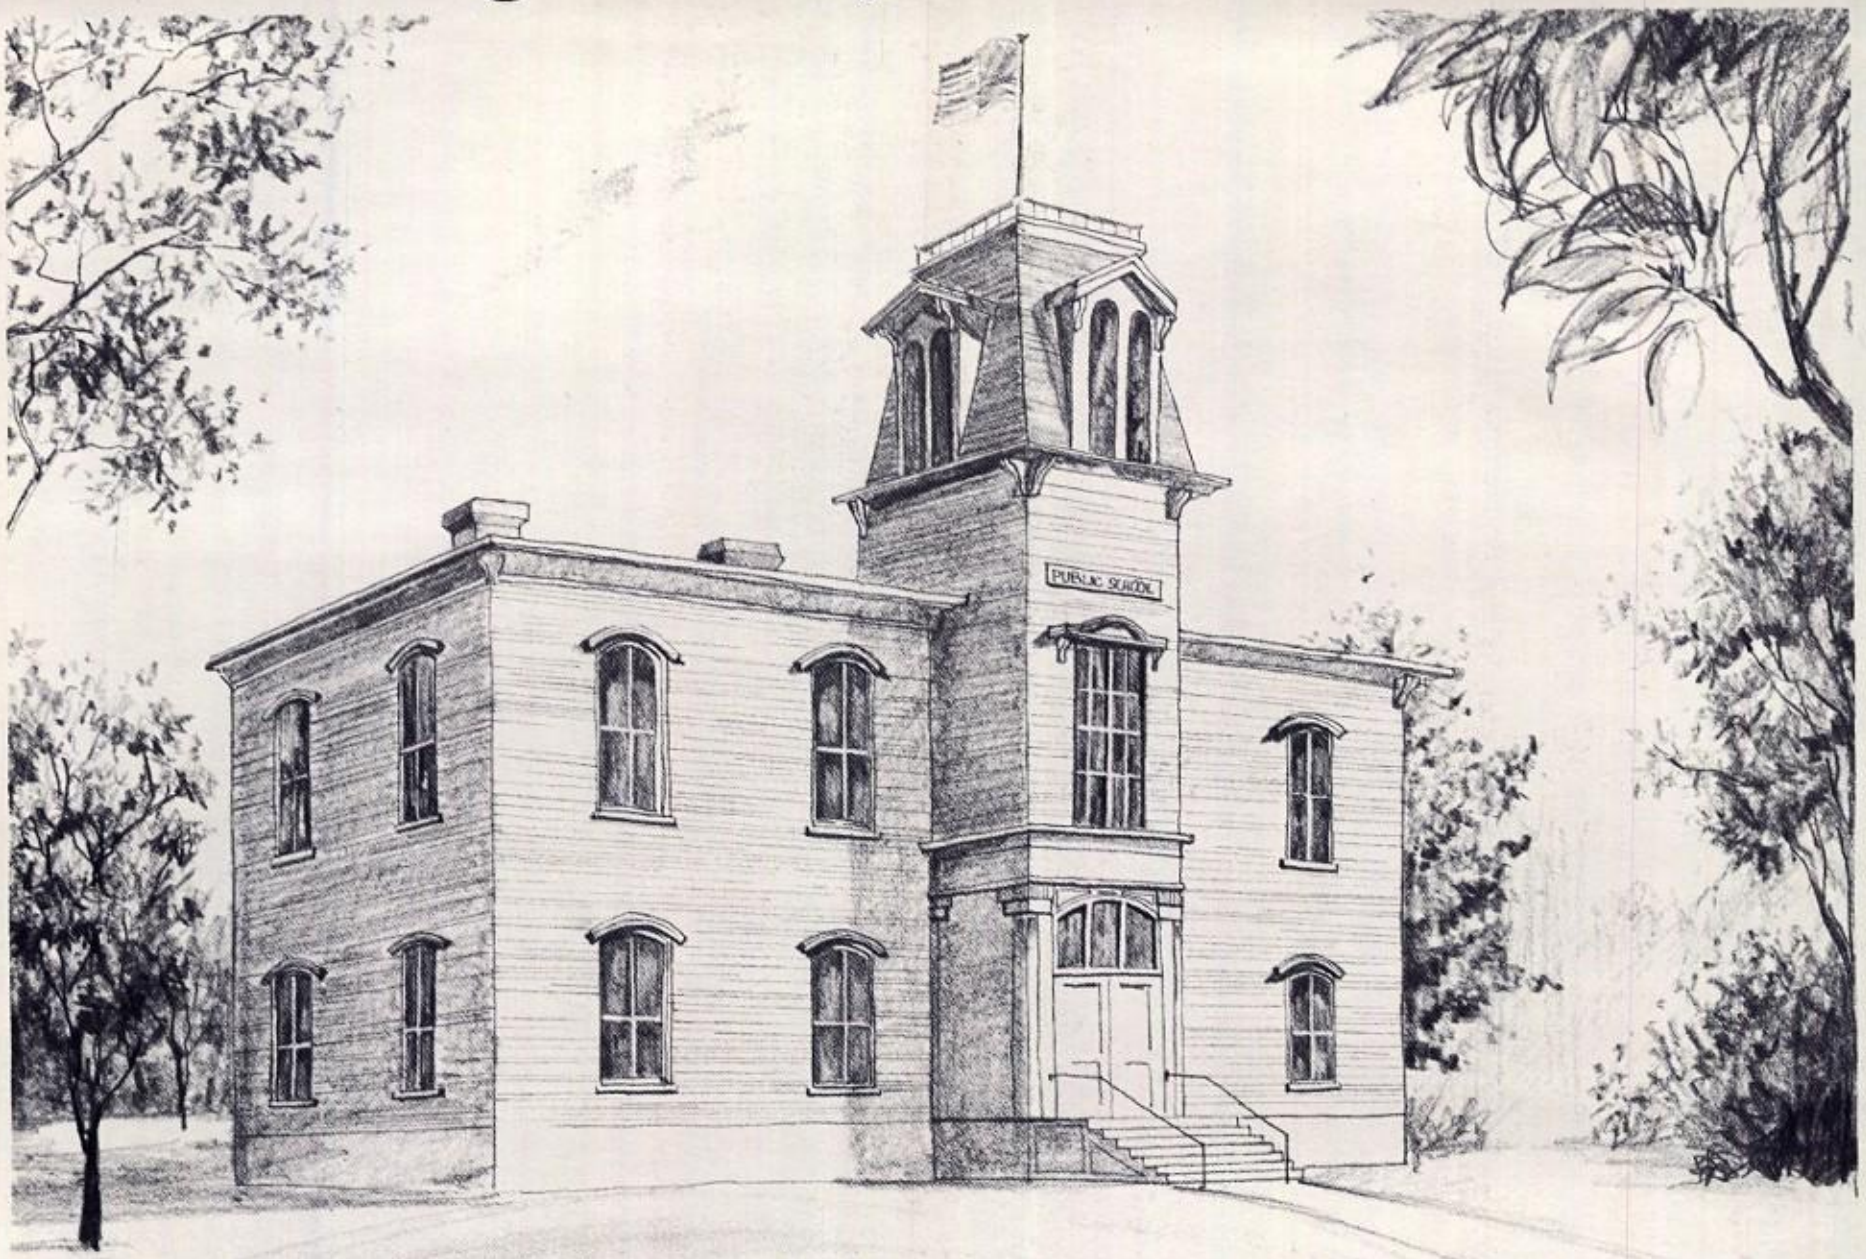
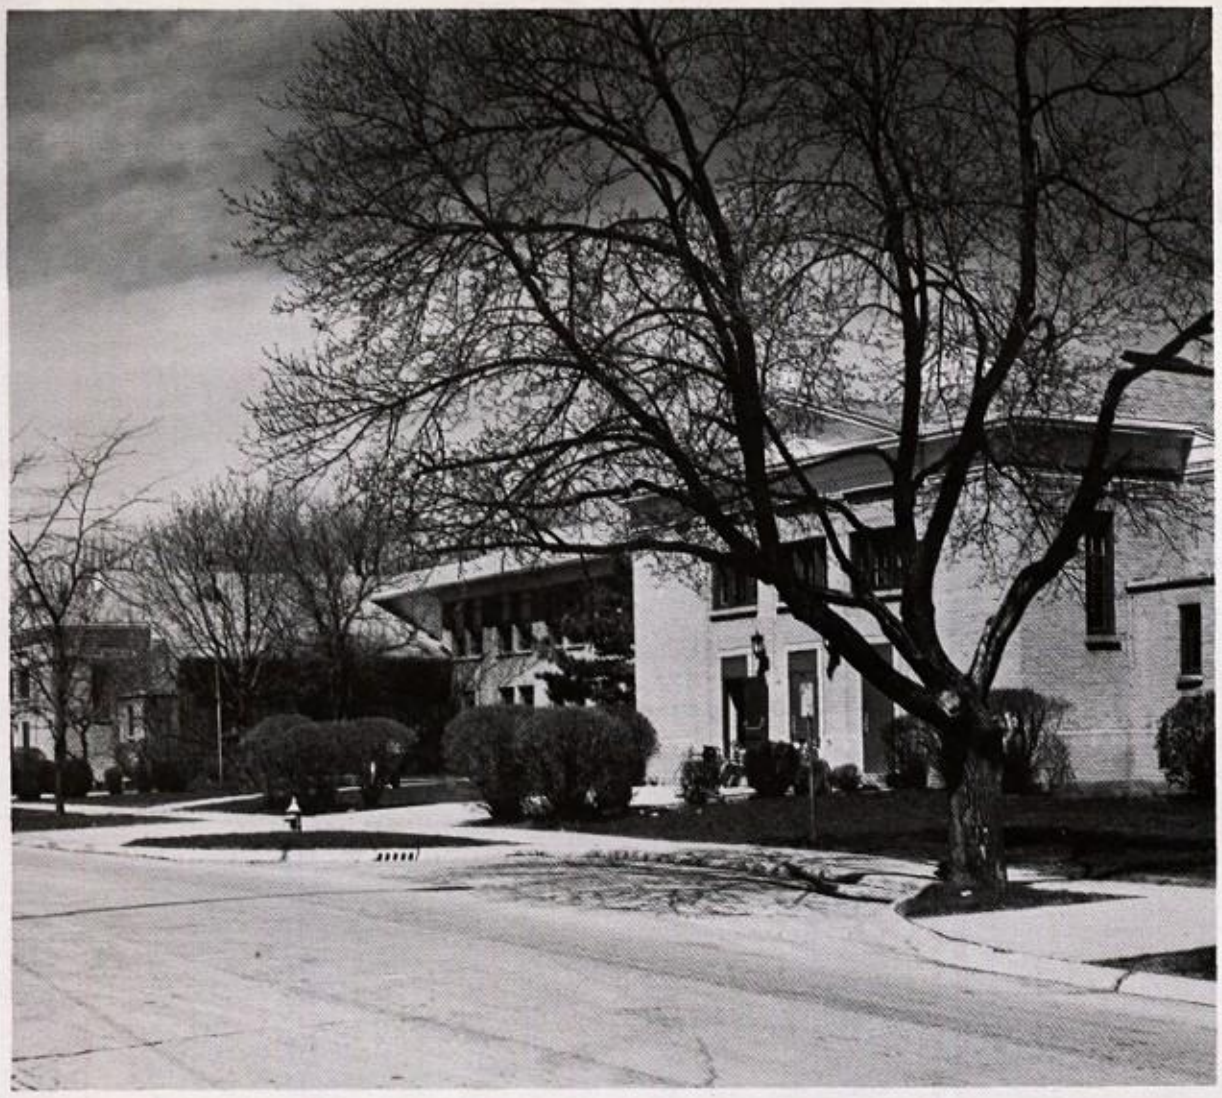
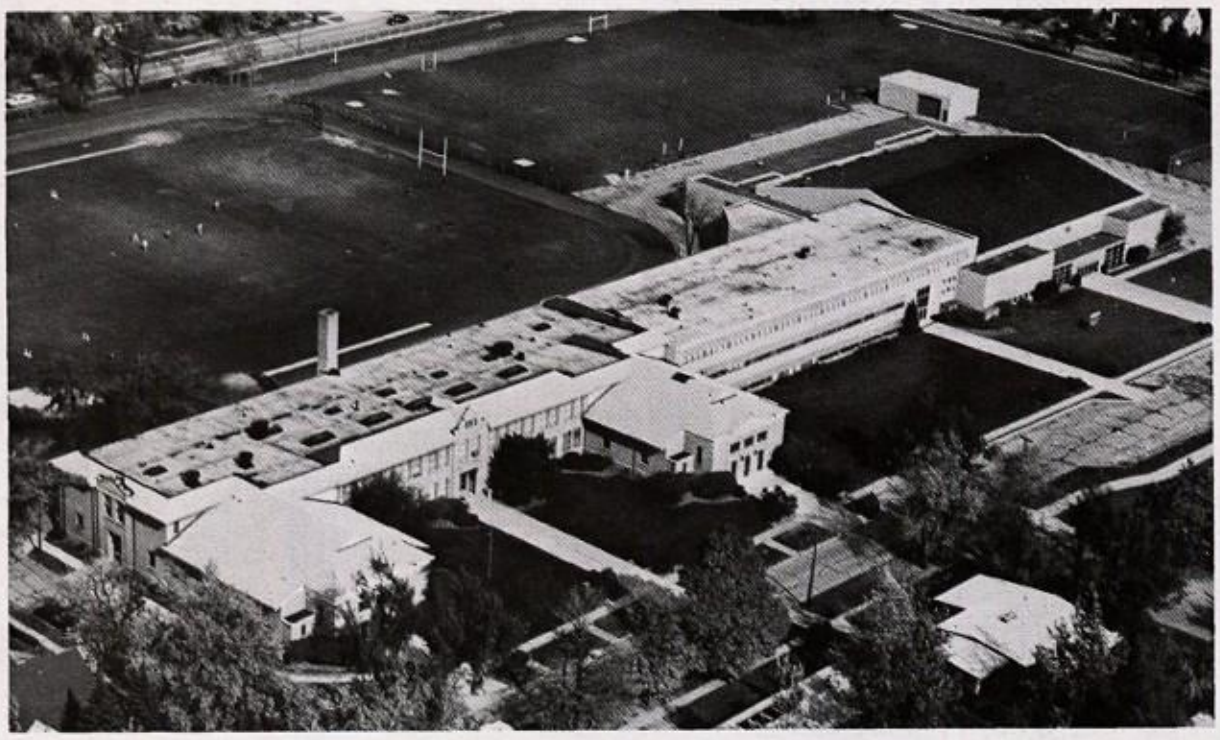
ABOVE: In the 40s dances were held after basketball games in the gym. Young people wanted a place of their own to gather, however, and they campaigned through local newspapers and raised funds for a youth center. In 1946 the Pirate's Cove, sponsored by the Lion's Club, opened its doors. Robb Miles painted the jukebox and dancers of the 40s. FAR LEFT: Some of this year's varsity football cheerleaders — Kyle Mangels, Kris Swanson, Joan Semler, Cindy Johnson and Sue Furtak — performing at the royal rally. LEFT: Pirate Pete. This fat little Pirate appeared on the cover of the 1959 Spotlight and through the pages of that book. He has remained at Palatine on book jackets and posters, a permanent gift from the staff of 1959.

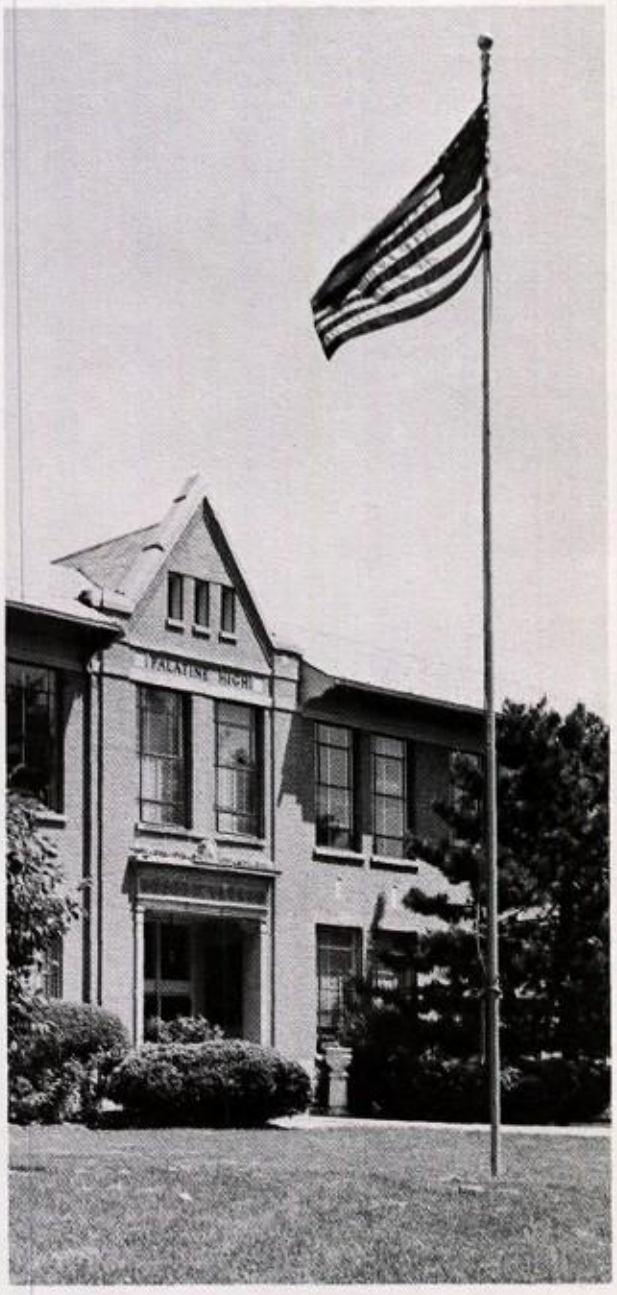
Palatine High's 100 years on Wood street



When Mr. Cutting in 1875 decided to start a high school, he took one of the four rooms in the frame school sketched here. It was built in 1869 replacing a one story structure built around 1860. An addition to the north side in 1888 added two rooms. High school continued in this building 38 years until a brick school was built in 1913 on the same block. The high school moving to a district of its own rented three classrooms, a laboratory and assembly (57 by 25 feet) room. The modern building had steam heat, modern plumbing and 40 watt tungsten electric lights. This building is presently the Joel Wood. The 1928 class was the lst to graduate from it. Only three percent of Palatine graduates attended these two schools. The sketch is the work of Dick Alcina, 1973, who is now a landscape architecture student at the University of Illinois. The school pictured below was named Joel Wood in 1956. Prior to that it was known as the Wood street school, and the name above the door reads Palatine.







LEFT: At the top, Palatine's first high school building flanked by Cutting hall on the left and a gymnasium on the right. The building was ample until suburban growth in the 1950s forced an addition in 1952. The aerial view shows the main building and the addition. By 1968 when the last addition was completed, Fremd and Conant were other district schools. ABOVE: The entrance to the science wing, which was the main entrance for 40 years.

Some high school memories stay for life

Lost to us are the memories of Palatine High graduates prior to 1900, but we know that only 121 had been graduated in the school's first 25 years. The memories here are unique as would be those of any of the 8650 graduates. The pictures are symbolic. They could be a combination of any five of the 8650. Comfortable success has followed many, and all represent a cross section of American life.

First graduation exercises were in 1879, members of the earlier two classes could petition to get their diplomas, and that is why Vashti Lambert's name appears in the 1880 program. Until 1891, programs stated that the Palatine Public School was holding closing exercises of the high school department. Speeches on such weighty subjects as The Influence of Steam, The Nobility of Labor, Make Haste Slowly and The Trapper's Place in Civilization were given by each graduate until 1914.

Elvira Schmidt, 1911, was moved from Long Grove to Palatine because her mother said, "The children are going to have an education." She remembers going to Chicago to the library to gather material for her speech on Civilization and Woman. She has a copy of it with her report cards and a couple of school pictures.

Elvira, who later worked for 32 years in the post office, orated, "No standard of advanced civilization that fails to yield to genuine womanhood the highest places among the social agencies that refine humanity and make the world better can receive intelligent sanction." And she concluded, "When we look back to the past and see how woman was deprived of all rights, how cruelly she was treated and how she was looked down upon, we are glad to think that we exist in the present when woman not only enjoys her freedom but is also revered and respected by everyone." The other two in the class also spoke. Alice Hanns' talk was on The Commercial Benefits of the Panama Canal, and Sarah Rennack told of The Reaction Against the Classics.

Addie Filbert, 1900, remembers monthly educational activities in the assembly hall such as debates and reading student written poems and essays with the boys throwing in a few jokes for levity. She remembers skating parties on week ends. She remembers her father dying of a gunshot wound in March before graduation. He had been shot in September in an attempted bank robbery when a young robber arrived by train, walked the few steps from the depot to the Batterman building planning to make his getaway on the next train. After graduation, Addie's mother gave her 60 cents for train fare to Chicago and the $1 fee to take a teacher's examination. She passed and taught for 32 years.

On two sheets of ruled paper in the Godknecht attic was found the history of the class of 1902. It is from such bits and pieces that history is created. Theirs was an enthusiastic endorsement of the joys of learning starting with Latin and going through algebra and on to botany in the spring.

Delia Knigge, 1903, continued her education at the art institute in Chicago and remembers that she drew the design for the 1913 graduation issue of the Mirror but was not given a credit line. Daisy Paddock, 1905, remembered Bible reading and prayer in the opening exercises. She remembered W. L. Smyser with affection, but she also remembered being sent home by the new principal, F. E. Newton, to remain at home until she apologized for walking out of class. Like Vashti Lambert and Addie Filbert, she became a teacher.

School was for learning, but one met with school friends for fun activities such as hayrack parties, sleighing, picnics, tennis, croquet and skating. And there was lots of singing. Skating was a village natural in winter on the many ponds.

Insurrections have been gentle. In 1911 students went on strike because they thought they should not have to go to school on Washington's birthday. Led by a band, they paraded around town singing patriotic songs. They stopped at the home of the board president.

Florence Smith Parkhurst's hearty laugh rings out as she remembers when she was a junior in 1920. The class of eight girls had the money collected for the senior dinner given by the juniors when an order came from Mr. Kimball, the principal, that all organization money must be turned in; the funds of all classes must be put together. Led by Mildred Frey, class president, the girls had their party at the home of Alice Harz. The menu, listed in the Palahi, gave the date as April 24 and the food as grapefruit in smilax, creamed chicken, mashed potatoes, corn, hot biscuits, banana salad, ice cream, cake, coffee and mints. On Monday, Mildred turned in the balance of the money and an itemized account of what was spent. The girls with the exception of Esther Eich were expelled. The girls went to the home of Tom Hart, board president, and presented their case. At an April 28 board meeting, it was decided that the girls were to be on probation for two weeks, they were then reinstated, and the board took over all activity funds. Leighton Mangels remembers that in April 1933 Pieter Vervloet was released as a teacher. Board minutes mentioned a hassle over a starting gun and someone else said that he had campaigned against a board member. Mangels clearly remembers that some of the students lined up on the sidewalk in front of the school with signs reading, "We don't want him to go." Principal Butler was released from his contract, and Mr. Vervloet was reinstated with a $200 raise. No credit is given the sign carriers.

In 1970 a group of seniors led by Ed Dolik and Jeff Graubart wore black tassels at commencement in protest to the Viet Nam war. This class donated $250 to a needy family because four groups played free at senior farewell.

Two graduates, who went on to leave their marks heavily upon Palatine high school, were Mercie Heise, 1919, and William Fremd, 1920.

Miss Heise returned in 1926 to teach Latin, French and English. "The best language teacher I ever saw," wrote Clarke Garrett, 1952. By 1936, librarian was added to her duties, and English was an off and on subject. By 1952, her only job designation was librarian, a job she fulfilled until her retirement in 1965. When the new addition was completed, the spacious library was named for her. Miss Heise, an accomplished organist and pianist, often served as accompanist.

Bill Fremd was known as the smart one, according to Madge Gibbs, 1920. And Florence Smith, 1921, tells how he did math for those having trouble. Bill Fremd walked to school from his Rand Road farm home and walked back again to night activities. He was class historian and instigator and editor of the Palahi. He used his fine sense of history to make and record school history in Palatine his 46 years as a school board member, 10 of which he served for district 15. He was most proud that he had never voted against a referendum.

Cutting hall became the site for graduation activities in 1929, and caps and gowns were worn. But by 1959, it was too small; and the move was made to the boys gym. In 1962 through 1967, graduation was in the Fremd gym. The Methodist church was a favorite auditorium in the early years, and St. Paul's church was also used. The 1914 exercises were in the assembly. The programs from then on through the 1930s indicate an outside speaker and sometimes the valedictorian and salutatorian. The custom of three or four senior speakers appeared in the 1940s. By 1925, the school orchestra was furnishing the music. Earlier programs indicate the use of local soloists and hired orchestras. Class nights and baccalaureate services were part of graduation for many years. Class night gave way to senior farewell and that in turn gave way in the 70s to breakfast or dinner. The last baccalaureate was in 1969.

Elvira Schmidt remembers the three girls in the class of 1911 were told they couldn't have pins because they were too few, but the juniors in 1912 had pins. Rings were in vogue by 1925. The 1926 seniors returned their rings because the onyx on several had cracked. They reordered.

Students from Lake Zurich and Wauconda traveled by train at half fare to attend school in Palatine. The best of these students were given free tuition by the board. Elizabeth McCarthy, one of those who came by train, is remembered by Margaret Stroker, 1917, and even though Elizabeth is in Florida, they exchange Christmas cards. Margaret Stroker did stenography for principal A. B. Morris. She remembers that "all thought so much of him." Home chores, waiting on table at her mother's hotel, kept her busy after school. Another one who remembers chores is Mabel Wenegar, 1925, who married Harrison Kincaid. She said, "I remember pushing the washing machine for 15 minutes at noon. How I hated that job."

When Robert Fosket was the only graduate in 1916, the board had printed invitations and a program June 15 in the Methodist church. Robert went on to be a member of Northwestern's school of dentistry staff for 35 years.

Priscilla Heise remembers board action September 13, 1922, granting her a diploma "she having 15 credits necessary for graduation."

The 1923 graduates had as their special guests the class of 1926. Those in school in 1925 remember the advent of a radio bought for $200 and a cabinet made for $9. Many remember the play days or area meets at Deer Grove.

Ten years after the first graduation exercises, an alumni association was formed. It held annual reunions through 1940. Then class reunions took over. The early reunions were frequently dinner dances, sometimes with the dinner at one place and the dancing at another and always with a business meeting and program.

At the 1918 meeting, the group moved to buy a service flag for graduates in WWI. It was purchased before the 1919 meeting and held 16 stars. Biggest endeavor of the group came in 1928 when it was learned that the school board could not afford to furnish a cafeteria for the newly constructed school. The room for the cafeteria was that part of the science wing from 107 to the girls gym. That year alumni met nine times from May through November. They contacted all alumni with their plan, visited schools with cafeterias and obligated themselves for $2484.65 worth of equipment from Albert Pick & Co. Although their reunions were usually spring affairs, they waited until after Thanksgiving so they could hold their reunion in the new school. At the September 15 dedication, alumni had reserved seats. Those from 1877 through 1903 were on the reception committee, and the others were ushers. They served lunch in the afternoon and evening. By reunion time, they had $1151.07 toward the equipment earned by serving a dinner, giving a play and collecting donations. However, by late 1930, Pick was threatening to take out the equipment if the final payment was not forthcoming. After consulting Charles S. Cutting, they asked the board to pay the debt.

Among Palatine's many graduates, Robert McKee, 1954, whose yearbook quotation following his senior picture read, "All I want is horsepower," has brought national recognition to Palatine through his McKee Engineering corporation "dedicated to developmental engineering design and the rendering of ideas into working prototypes." Race car design and construction featured the early years of the company, which has now become deeply engaged in the electric vehicle business.

Another graduate stretching her horizons is Janet Kelly, 1965, a physician in Oklahoma City, where she conducts a family practice.

Mildred Weseman, 1928, remembers her love of typing and the hard times of the depression years. When her mother wanted her to

Bake sale and dance become money raisers

Among Rosie Hoppens' many attributes that made her February senior of the month was her helping to organize the senior bake sale which netted $100. Here she was busy selling the goodies which came as early as 8 February 14.

"Excelsior."
HIGH SCHOOL DIPLOMA.
THIS CERTIFIES
THAT
Henry C. Schroeder
Has completed the Course of Study prescribed for the High School of PALATINE, ILLINOIS, and by his attainments and correct deportment is entitled to receive this
DIPLOMA
In Witness Whereof, We have hereunto affixed our signatures, at Palatine, Illinois, this twelfth day of June, 1903.
F. E. Newton
Principal.
Ernest Beutler
Secretary.
Board of Education.

Early diplomas were big like this 19½ by 15¾ inch one saved by Henry Schroeder with announcement and program of his 1903 graduation in the Methodist church. His oration was "What Shall We Do with the Trusts?" Mr. Schroeder went on to work in a Chicago bank and later worked 28 years for the telephone company. He was a village trustee for 16 years, chief of police for several years, a member of the fire department and the Palatine military band.

Added lots for site cost $13,375; building costs increase $30,000

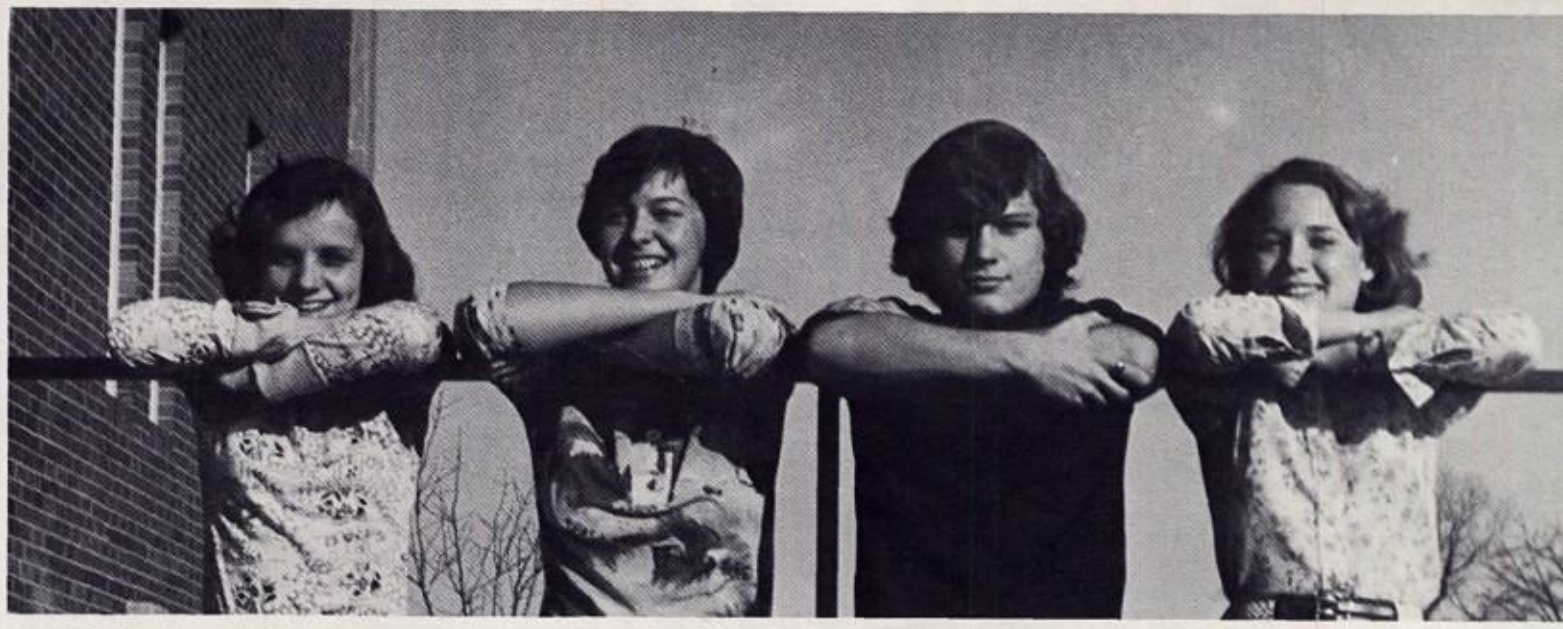
The class of 1913 (from top to bottom) consisted of A. Gordon Humphrey, William Mair, Walter Wittenberg, Lauramae Ruhles, Vera Gosswiller, and Janet Putnam. They were the last graduates from the old frame building. These four juniors are taking advantage of the facilities in this building. Mary Jones gaining experience in setting a table properly at a home economics party, Kathy Rackow and Dan Calvert using the cafeteria as an option area and Mark Lush relaxing in the library.

Mrs. Tatgenhorst continues as adviser



Sophomore class officers: Margaret Sullivan, secy ; Valerie Carroll, vp; Scott Zust, pres ; and Marg Tozer, treas. They and Mrs. Tatgenhorst received little response in help in class projects.

Charles S. Cutting starts Palatine High

"He always wanted a school," said Charles Sydney Cutting's daughter in law as she extolled the virtues of the man who began Palatine High.

Charles Cutting followed his father to Palatine the summer of 1874. He taught the upper grades of the Public School so well that he was made principal for 1875. He started a program of studies beyond eighth grade, and in 1877 three students had completed his two year course. The following year five more, then eight, and in his last year as principal, three. Before Charles Cutting left teaching to become a lawyer and later a nationally known judge, he had taken 19 young people beyond eighth grade and had started Palatine High.

Born in Highgate, VT March 1, 1854, Charles Cutting received his high school education in Hastings, MN and his college education at Willamette University, Salem, OR. The year before coming to Palatine, he had worked on the Cedar Rapids, IA, Times. In 1876 he married Annie Lytle, a school teacher Palatine born, the daughter of Myron Lytle and Anna Bradwell. While he taught, he studied law and passed the bar examination. Although he left teaching in 1880, his continued interest in Palatine found him serving the school as its attorney free of charge, as a member of the school board, as dedication speaker in 1913 at the Palatine School, now the Joel Wood school, as dedication speaker in 1928 at the Palatine high school and as an almost perennial commencement speaker.

Mr. Cutting died April 17, 1936, and school closed April 20 for the funeral. The flag flew at half mast, and the cortege formed in front of the school.

Words spoken at a memorial service in Cutting Hall May 3 gave the measure of the man. "A Man who stood for all that was honest and upright, a life of usefulness to mankind."

"No tribute will exceed the just recognition of his splendid and useful life." "His fine character and brilliant mental attainments, his sense of civil responsibility and his unalloyed patriotism and his long and exemplary career of public life." "Qualities of mind and heart that made the friendship of this man so priceless." "Willingness to give time and energy to others — honesty, sincerity, candor, mind clear and discerning, rare sense of humor." "A many sided life is inevitable for any one so big in mind and heart as he. His personal charm equalled his distinction at the bar."

H. H. Pahlman, 1894, friend of young Robert Cutting, gave a glimpse of Mr. Cutting as a father. "Bob Cutting had many books . . . Mr. Cutting built a toboggan slide. . . . He was a leading player on the village baseball team."

Not only did Mr. Cutting give of himself and time to the high school, but monetary gifts have been recorded: $150 for library books in 1924; $100 to the drive to furnish the cafeteria in 1928; $1000 to the library in the new high school building.

A Sunday outing in the 1930s would start with Judge Cutting saying, "Let us go to see my school." Then the chauffeur would bring the car around, and he and his daughter in law would drive to Palatine from Chicago.

Mrs. Cutting had died in 1920, and Robert died in 1930.

Between Mr. Cutting's leaving and the April 18, 1914 vote to organize a township district, the school had 10 principals with the Smysers, young men from Pennsylvania, the favorites. W. L. served from 1892 to 1902 and M. L. from 1904 to 1912. Margaret Stroker Witt remembers M. L., "He was so nice. He played with the children at recess." He went on to other area schools and into Chicago. W. L. coached the town football team, "which gained glory by whipping the greatest teams of the middle west." He later organized the first Maine high school.

Early 1900 pictures show one teacher and the principal. By 1912, two teachers were on the staff. Subjects taught were the solids. In 1894, Greek, Latin and German were being offered in the formal classical curriculum. Addie Filbert, 1900, wrote of three or four years of Latin, four of English and math, three of science and mentioned taking a year of German. She remembers educational activities in the assembly hall such as debating and reading student produced essays and poems.

Elvira Schmidt Waseman, 1911, took much the same classical curriculum. She said German was not being taught, but bookkeeping was offered her third year. She couldn't take it because she was on the other curriculum. There is evidence that bookkeeping might have been offered in 1901.

A 1914-15 course of study listed the principal and two assistants (teachers). Required subjects were four years of English, advanced arithmetic, algebra and plane geometry, hygiene, physical geography and American history, and civics the senior year. Electives were four years of Latin, music, ancient history, modern history, English history, bookkeeping, commercial geography and law, stenography and typing, zoology, botany, chemistry and economics. Reviews and pedagogy were offered for students bound for teaching. Spelling was important. The brochure read, "Weekly written lessons in spelling will be required of every student. Credit will not be allowed for spelling, but failure to pass in this work will be sufficient cause for failing the student in the English course which he is taking." Report cards also noted attendance, punctuality, recitation, deportment and application.

The November 1913 Mirror mentions aprons in chemistry class, and the January 1914 issue reads, "Locks have been installed on all drawers in the chemical laboratory table." This same issue tells of an afternoon and evening poultry show at which music was furnished by the high school orchestra and quartet.

The solid subjects moved to the high school building with principal Butler and teachers Elizabeth Miller, Mercie Heise and Harrison Kincaid. Esther Smith was hired to carry on in the commercial department, and three new teachers were added: Pieter Vervloet for math, mechanical drawing and manual training; Gladys Schwartz for home economics and Verna Jumps, who would remain for 26 years in English and dramatics. Because the foods laboratory was not equipped, Miss Schwartz taught one history class and girls physical education.

Harrison Kincaid joined the high school staff in 1925 as a science and math teacher and coach. He took on the Spotlight in 1926. "Fair minded, he wouldn't cheat or hurt anyone," he set standards in scholarship and sports. He was a successful coach in basketball and track but left Palatine the spring of 1931 to teach and coach at Crane Tech in Chicago. He continued living in Palatine, where he was involved in many civic organizations and served the school board as president from 1935 to 1942, when he left as an air force major in WWII.

The name McElroy is synonymous with Palatine High, but it was a young history teacher coming from Iowa in the fall of 1931 who began the 39 year McElroy saga. For $1600 he was to teach history and math and supervise the Spotlight. Sports was an easy addition. An ardent sports fan, he turned into a fine coach. Carl Megel may have started the Palatine track invitational, but Mr. McElroy's adding the relays named the annual event. He substituted softball for football in 1937, brought back cross country in 1940 and began golf in 1950. When he became principal in April 1944, he was to continue as coach. His $3500 salary the following year, he was told, was near the limit that could be paid by the district. Mr. McElroy was well liked, and students of the 1930s sing the praises of McElroy, Megel and Vervloet.

Although "superintendent" had been bandied about before, Mr. McElroy was really 211's first, the first to match job to title. The 1957 Spotlight designated him "superintendent principal," but in 1959 he was superintendent only.

The McElroy saga covering 39 years saw Palatine grow from a school of nine teachers and 175 students to a district of 353 teachers and 6394 students. From a teacher gladly earning $1600, he retired at a salary of $27,000. From a dedicated teacher and sports devotee in one small building, he was in charge of three buildings and had built a fourth and was directing an $11 million budget when he left school work. His love of community has carried on in his work on the library board and in the book store, which he and Mrs. McElroy share.

"Nothing flashy," said school board member William Fremd of Mr. McElroy. "He was a steady worker making Palatine known for student morale, good discipline and sound financial administration. Maybe he was best at teacher recruitment." There are still many teachers in the district who bear the McElroy stamp of approval.

Adelheid Gieske came to Palatine High in 1944 when Mr. McElroy stepped up as principal. Her 23 years here were years of perfection in literature and composition.

Meticulous was the word for Mrs. Gieske; and idealistic, enterprising, well organized, proper, kind and generous also describe this gracious lady and scholar.

A graduate of the University of Chicago, her English scholarship was matched by that in German and music. Art and travel were other loves. All of these she used in teaching English.

No teacher can measure how many lives she has reached, but there are many who speak in a softer voice when they name Mrs. Gieske. Mrs. Gieske developed an English department with a strong writing and grammar program that in no way took from the beauty and understanding that is found in literature. From the pens of her students flowed creativity. They wrote poems they never dreamed were possible.

Of her, Mr. McElroy said, "Students found her strict, but a person with patience and understanding. They also found warmth of personality." And Mr. Newendorp said at her retirement at age 70, "Most noteworthy is the fact that she is a fine person whose high standards of personal conduct sometimes hide the fact that she is an unusually kind and generous person, who has come to the aid of many a student and young teacher."

Many of those who benefited from her acts of kindness never knew from whence they came.

This year Ray Mills closes 30 years at Palatine High, 30 years of guiding young people into their futures. His joyful knowledge of the world outside the classroom enriched the lives of those he touched, and in the early years, he touched them all.

Clarke Garrett, 1952 graduate, in writing of teachers who had made an impact said, ". . . and Ray Mills, who drew out ideas and possibilities we didn't know we had." His memories of Mr. Mills are as a social science teacher, senior guidance counselor, director of student activities, art appreciation teacher, student council adviser, boys counselor, and explorer scout master. Although he never taught behind the wheel driver education, he taught the classroom course. As his administrative duties as assistant principal and dean of boys became heavier, his teaching load lessened. But in 1958 when guidance became a department of two with five part time counselors, he was still in art. Mr. Mills continued head of guidance until 1972. College night was one of his innovations. He visited many colleges, the better to help students choose well. History is rarely absolute. A yellowed piece of paper or an old notebook may change some of what we put down here, but we do know that the solid subjects, varied by teacher specialties, held forth

Choir first place state winners were Jacque Ferrario, soprano; Tim McGlynn, baritone; Chris Thomas, tenor: Lisa Saunderson, soprano, the madrigals, chorale ensemble, mixed quartet, girls quartet and Tina Auski and Lisa on piano.
Band winners were Mary Munson and Beth Bateman, french horn; Tim, McGlynn, clarinet; Jeff Doebler, trumpet, and six ensembles that included Jeff, Mary, Beth, Al Lencioni, Rocco Militello, Tom Kuehne, Paul Jacobs, Kathy Kost, Barb Pingel, Todd Morris, Ken Kohl, Kurt Hamlen, Bruce Tickner.
The music department does a good job of recruiting. A festival combining high school and grade school students acquaints parents and students of the opportunities in high school. Orchestra also had a festival.
The music department's bicentennial contributions culminating with the cantata would have been impossible without the many hours of classroom practice.

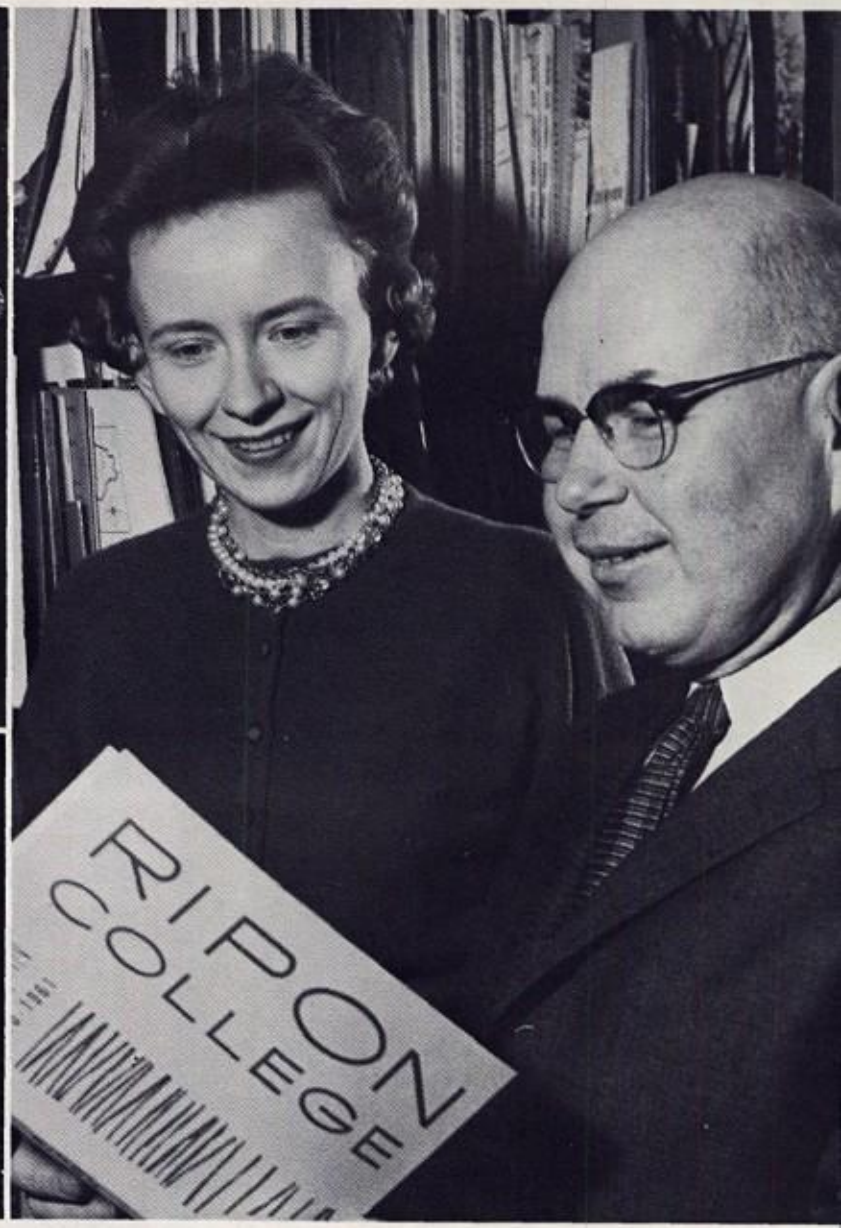
Mr. Mills, renaissance man, retires



When Mr. Mills left Palatine in June, a gracious era departed. Already a lover of beauty and a world traveler when he came in 1946, Mr. Mills, quickly offered an art appreciation course, which he continued for 15 years and later turned into a night school offering with two others covering Chicago and world architecture.

In his early years ar Palatine, Mr. Mills organized student tours to theatricals, concerts and ballet. He still enjoys all of these, and his Wedgewood collection often takes him to England and Canada.

As his work shifted from class room to guidance, Mr. Mills became an authority on colleges. He was the first guidance director and held the position until 1972.

Fun loving and ever responsive to student demands, Mr. Mills was an eager and active participant in assembly skits. He is pictured here in some working and playing roles covering the last 30 years.

Mr. Mills' aesthetic interests and liberal philosophy over the years caused him to join more than 23 organizations always with liberal contributions.

Mirror reflects school life of 1912-14

In recording history, it is dangerous to be positive about "the first," so we record here what we know about the activities at Palatine High.

The class of 1914 began a news and literary monthly called The Mirror with the first issue in October 1912. The 1913 commencement issue pictured the graduates and told of Palatine School's new building. The magazine seems to have stopped after June 1914. It carried grade school news too. A 1920 yearbook, Palahi, edited by William Fremd, stands alone.

Then in October 1925, seniors in Irma Olson's English class started a monthly newspaper, and Ruth Scoggin won $1 for the name Spotlight. The mimeographed first two numbers were followed by printed papers with the June issue picturing the graduates. The June issues of 1927 and 1929 were also senior issues as was that of 1943, but the June issue in 1928 was a real yearbook. Group pictures gave way to individual pictures of underclassmen in 1951; hard covers came in 1954; and the 9x12 size started in 1961.

In the 1930s the Spotlight was published in the village paper, and in the early 40s it was mimeographed. In December 1926, Vernette Schroeder, 1927, attended the state press association meeting, and Palatine continued to attend through the 30s. Since 1962 and the advent of Mrs. Salzer as adviser, both publications have had memberships in national, state and regional press groups. The school became a Quill and Scroll member in 1946. Both publications have consistently held NSPA first class ratings in the last 14 years, and the 1970 Spotlight edited by Maureen Mulroy and the 1969-70 Cutlass edited by Claudia Borman, 1971, rated all American. Ed Burg, 1975, earned a Quill and Scroll gold key.

The Spotlight name served both newspaper and yearbook although they soon had separate staffs. But in 1951, explorer scouts on a South Dakota trip felt the paper should have a Pirate name. Clarke Garrett (1952), the next editor, suggested The Cutlass. Clarke was also active in music and drama, became Phi Beta Kappa at Carleton college and is now history chair person at Dickinson college, PA.

The yearbook, which first sold for 50 cents and then a dollar and which was selling for $3.50 in 1963 and $7 in 1975, reached a high of $10 this year.

The 1970s brought the literary magazine with varying content, format and name.

Delia Knigge Flaherty, 1903, remembers no school music, but a professor Bahr came on the train from Barrington and gave weekly instrumental lessons for 25 cents.

First recorded mention of music that we found was the piano fund started in September 1913 at the dedication of the Palatine School. High school students sold ice cream at the dedication and made $33. Subsequent reports pushed the fund to $284.06 by March 1914. In October 1913, we found mention of wanting to start boys and girls glee clubs, but nothing came of that. However, music was listed as an elective in 1914-15, and there is mention of an orchestra and a quartet in 1914. Board minutes show $10 for orchestra music in 1923 and a $50 gift to the orchestra in 1925 in appreciation for its playing at school functions. George Minneberger, 1924, was training the orchestra.

In 1928, Mr. Hannah of the Conn Music school developed a 30 piece band. It played at the September 15 dedication of the high school. By May 1929 the band had uniforms: white trousers and shirts, maroon capes and caps costing $360. The band gave a concert to help pay for them.

Daniel Mason, also from Conn, came in 1930. Membership was 35. The band rehearsed weekly, and after school rehearsals gave way to 7:30 in the morning. In spring the band presented a minstrel show.

By 1933-34, teachers were being hired to handle the musical extra curricular activities. Band expansion began in 1939 with a drive for new uniforms. Edson Stiles was the director. The band played at basketball games, marching along the side lines and maneuvering at halftime. They made double revolving circles, spirals, cartwheels, an Indian tipi, and a Christmas tree illuminated by sparklers held by each member. The band went to the national competition festival at Battle Creek, MI and took first honors. Members had earned the money for the trip after the board had turned them down. In 1941, the band took part in the Chicagoland music festival before 85,000 people. An added attraction was a flag swinging corps of five girls. In 1941-42 the band reorganized as a military unit. There were four bands in 1943: concert, marching, varsity and girls. By the next year a beginners band was started. In 1965 the band tripped to Washington and New York. Recent trips have been to Mt. Rushmore and the state fairs.

A concert orchestra started in the 1933-34 year as did a dance orchestra named Harmony Snatchers. Louise Wente was at the piano, Marvin Plate was at the drums, and Mr. Vervloet played violin and at times directed. Graduation 1936 broke up the group which had been in demand at school and village functions. Other dance bands appeared in 1948, 49, and 51, but orchestra dropped from yearbooks after 1937 and didn't show again until 1959-60 when five persons and director John Shoemaker made another try. The orchestra grew and declined and after 1964 did not show again until 1970, when a district orchestra was begun.

A girls glee club started in 1928. It appeared again in 1933 as an after school activity, but in 1936 it was given school time. Boys glee club started in 1937 and was off and on until the 1950s and then continued through 1965. Choir appeared in 1955-56, and madrigals in 1959-60. As enrollment increased, other groups of singers formed, all with the goal of making choir.

More music than drama were the operettas of the 1930s and 40s, using all the music talent of the school in large casts. Leighton Mangels still has his score from Melinka of Astrakhan, 1935.

Verna Jumps directed the first plays in Cutting hall, and for 26 years she and drama were one. She described those years as "the best days of my life." By telephone this spring, she said, "I had a marvelous time, a ball. Tell them I love them all, still."

But there were plays before Miss Jumps. A drama club was organized in 1913 with proceeds from its productions to go to itself, the baseball team, the piano fund and The Mirror. Between the Acts was presented March 1913. Next mention of a drama club was the 1929 organization started by Miss Jumps. By 1935, the pattern of plays appears to have been one by drama club, one by the senior class and one by the juniors. The senior class play was Sweet Sixteen and was described in the yearbook as "a clean and highly amusing comedy, and for those who like straight acting there was lovable grandfather."

In 1941 when the club began to deteriorate, Miss Jumps revived it. Charles Buenzow, captain of the 1939 basketball team, said, "Miss Jumps was always very protective of the drama department. If it began to go downhill, she would pep it up again. She was always looking for tall boys to be in her plays. Needless to say all the tall boys would be out on the basketball court. It never ceased to amaze me how she could coax us into coming to play practice after we had spent hours on the court. She would always be pulling kids out of the woodwork." One of those tall boys was Stuart Paddock, 1933, now president and publisher of Paddock publications. On Spotlight staff for three years and editor his junior year, he played basketball as a junior and senior and was in four plays.

The 1942 senior play was Ask Me Another. Because it was available only in manuscript form, the cast was privileged to have their names included in the published form as being in the original cast. In 1945 drama club went to Chicago to see Helen Hayes in Harriet and to meet her backstage. Theater trips have continued. The 1947 senior play, A Date With Judy, used the class gift, a public address system. In 1948 the seniors gave Blithe Spirit, a play that would be performed several times until the early 1960s. By 1960, class plays had stopped, and in 1963 a thespian troupe began.

At the close of the 1954 drama season, a plaque was presented to the school honoring Miss Jumps' 26 years of outstanding leadership, work and tireless effort in drama. She left to become Mrs. Ward.

When the school split into two buildings in the fall of 1961, freshmen and sophomores expanded with theatre in the round in Fremd's cafeteria. There Peg Zajonc, 1968, as a sophomore played the lead in Night of January 16th. Leadership, council and GAA were other interests. By the time she came to Palatine as a junior, drama was uppermost. She continued on student council and was chosen 1967 holiday dance queen, but her triumph was as Mrs. Antrobus in Skin of Our Teeth. Peg is pushing for a career in drama. The 1970s brought the annual musicals starting in 1969 with Bye Bye Birdie. Cutting hall was freshened in 1969-70 with new seats and carpeting. The seats arrived the day before opening night, and custodians had to work overtime so that another Night of January 16th could be performed. Robin Hood, an original musical by Mark Stegen and Jeff Incavo, 1971, and Mr. Reiser furnished a part for Jim Hartman (1972), who stole the show as Friar Tuck.

Student council, begun in 1941 with Dr. Reusser as adviser, met every Wednesday. In 1945 advised by Howard Stinson, council filled 200 Christmas stockings for servicemen. Dancing during the noon periods, after school, after games and Friday evenings was promoted by council. Many successful parties were given; among them were freshman welcome and senior farewell. In 1945 two representatives were dropped because they failed to maintain a C average.

Mr. Mills followed Mr. Stinson as council adviser, and he gave way to Burton Showers in 1954-55. Mr. Showers, familiarly known as Sarge, came to Palatine the fall of 1950 as head of social studies, teacher of American history and adviser to the newspaper staff. By 1954-55 he was also teaching government and advising student council and the junior class. The newspaper advisership had been only a year. By the fall of 1957, he was also assistant principal, a job that lasted four years. In the fall of 1958 he assumed the position of director of student activities. He not only watched activities to see that they conformed with school policy but was also in charge of concessions and special assemblies. The extensive monitor system was also his. In his last year at Palatine, 1961-62, he also taught Russian history. He sponsored a travel club and in some years found time to be technical director for drama.

Palatine hosted the northeast-northwest district convention of the Illinois Association of Student Councils in 1955. In 1957 and in 1960 it sponsored Louis Armstrong concerts. In 1960 it hosted the state council convention at the Sherman hotel in Chicago. In 1963 council initiated seminars on current problems. These after school sessions drew several hundred participants for such topics as the population explosion, the Kennedy assassination and Johnson's administration. The 1960s saw a strong foreign exchange program with students from South America, South Africa, Germany and Holland supported in part by money earned at all school auctions at which Carl Weimer, science chairman, acted as auctioneer.

The dance, so much a part of v-shows, assemblies and musicals, has a beginning date of 1959-60 with 66 girls pictured as seeking self expression, creativity and grace. Dance shows each year are choreographed by the dancers and costumes are usually original.

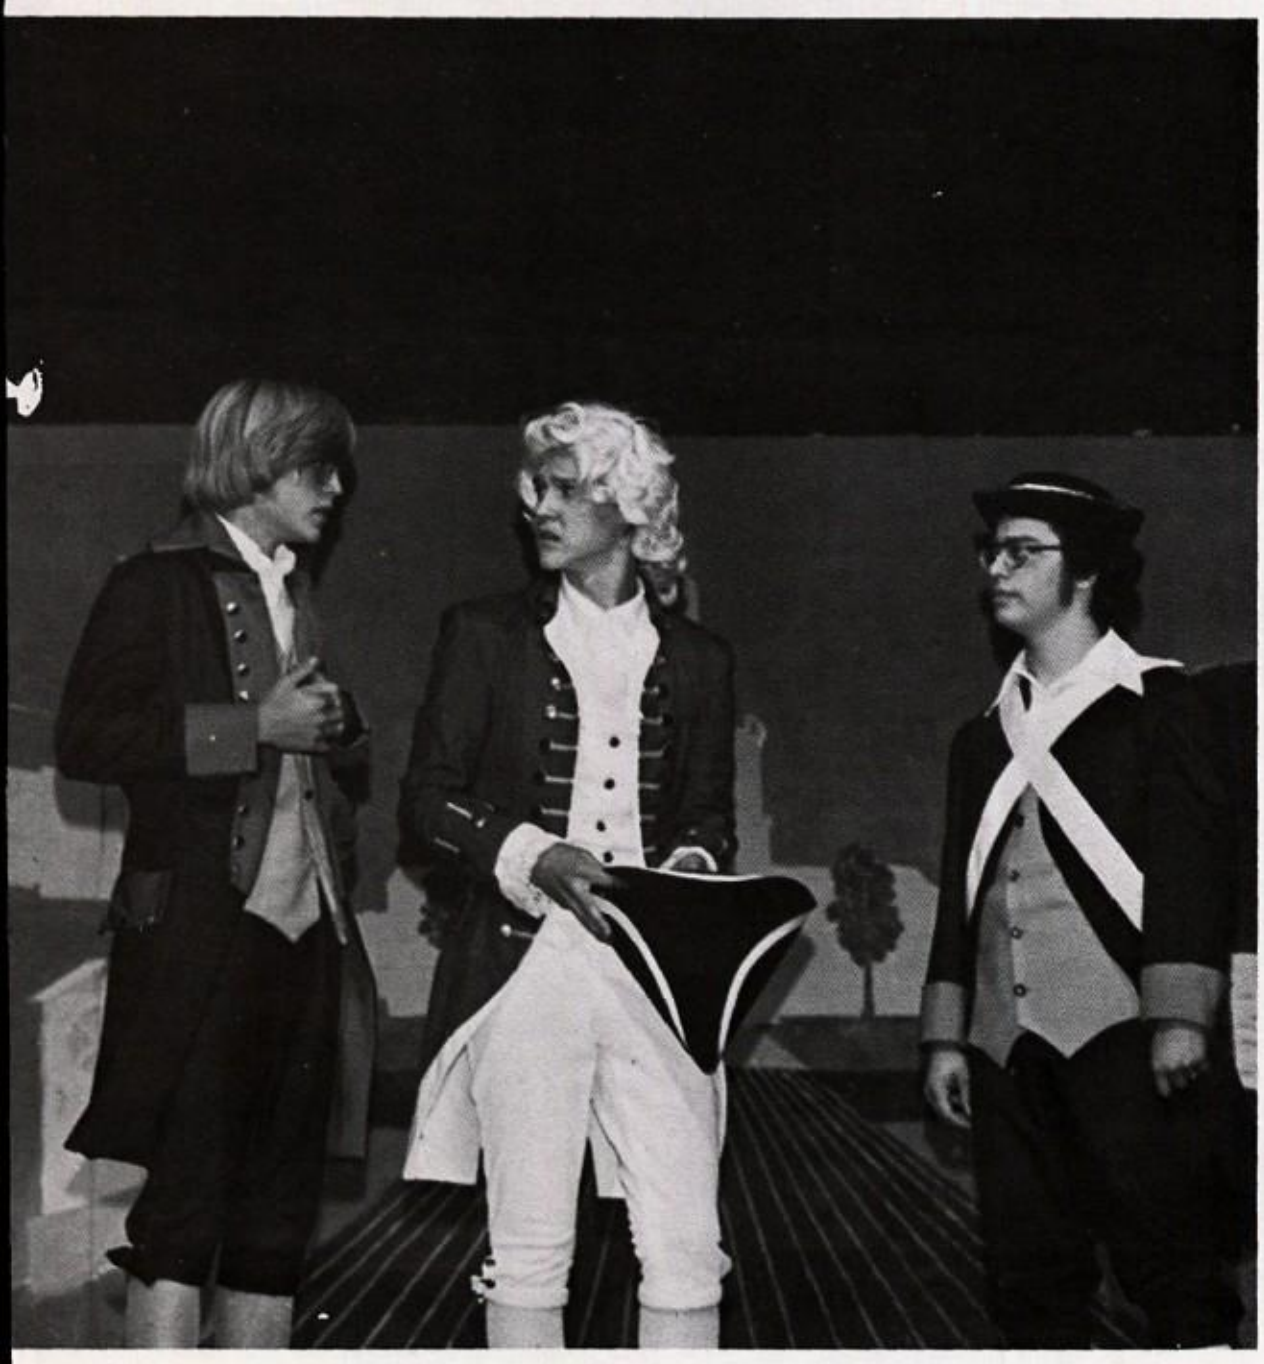
Reiser's Betsy opens bicentennial year

Showing disinterest in the threats of the Americans to break with England, King George (Tim Philbin) speaking with an aide while court members Jacque Ferrario, Luann Gerth and Gregg Jannusch looked on. This scene opened the first act of Betsy, an original musical for the bicentennial year written by David Reiser of the music department and professional Jack Sharkey. BELOW: Joan Brown held the title role of Betsy Ross, the staid Quaker maiden, who, as one legend has it, sewed the nation's first flag. George Washington (Gregg Jannusch) voicing his dreams for a single flag in the song, I Can See It Now. Many of the cast members, including Gregg, were responsible for their costumes. Mark Obermeyer and Paul Santow as officers in the new continental army, showing Betsy's completed flag to the waiting crowd. Betsy was performed September 18, 19, and 20. Several concert versions of the show were also performed by cast members.



Spurred on by Betsy's sister Anne (Jean Linsner), the Quaker schoolgirls give their thoughts about men in Where Is the Harm. Pictured is Mary McGee, Jacque Ferrario and Lynn Schwab jigging in the schoolhouse; Tim McGlynn playing Philadelphia upholsterer John Ross, Betsy's husband, who is killed serving his country in the Revolution. Tim and Joan were also paired as romantic leads last spring in Guys and Dolls. Ben Siegler and Janice Lindegard were cast as Betsy's strict parents, who forbade her marriage to John Ross because he was not a Quaker. Betsy and her parents become reconciled after John is killed in an ammunition depot explosion. LEFT: Officers telling General Washington that trouble is brewing among the various militias because each has its own flag.

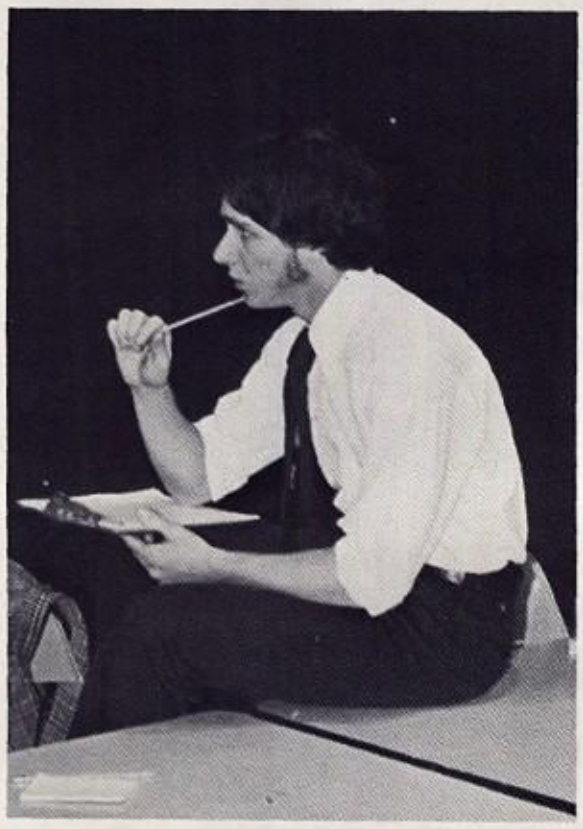
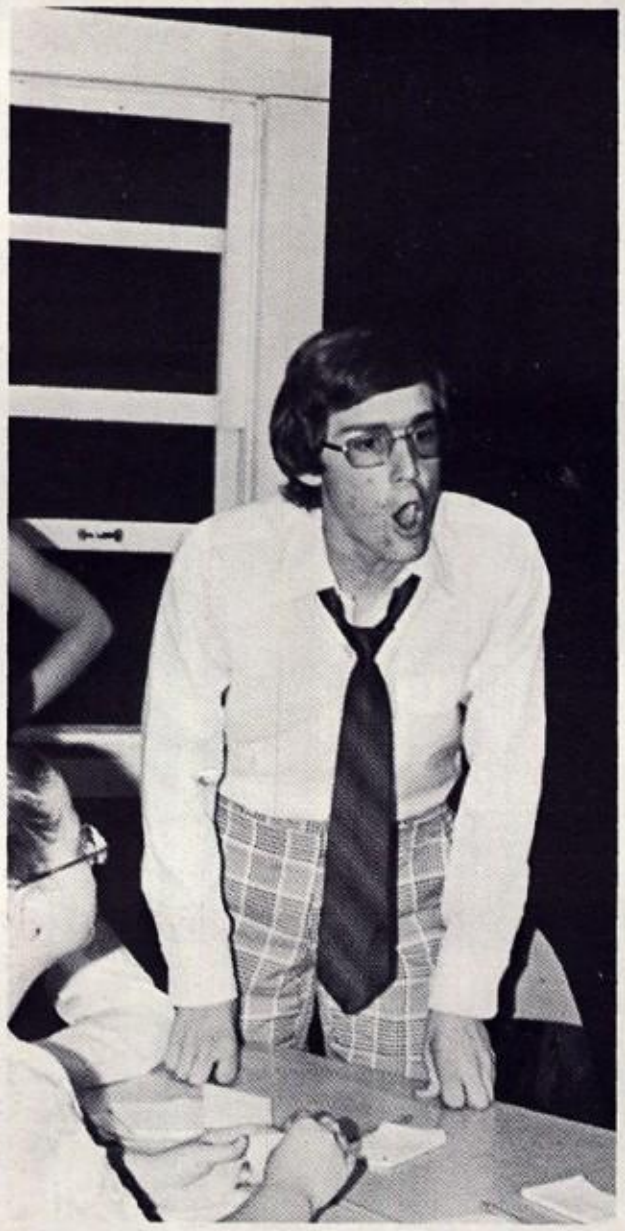
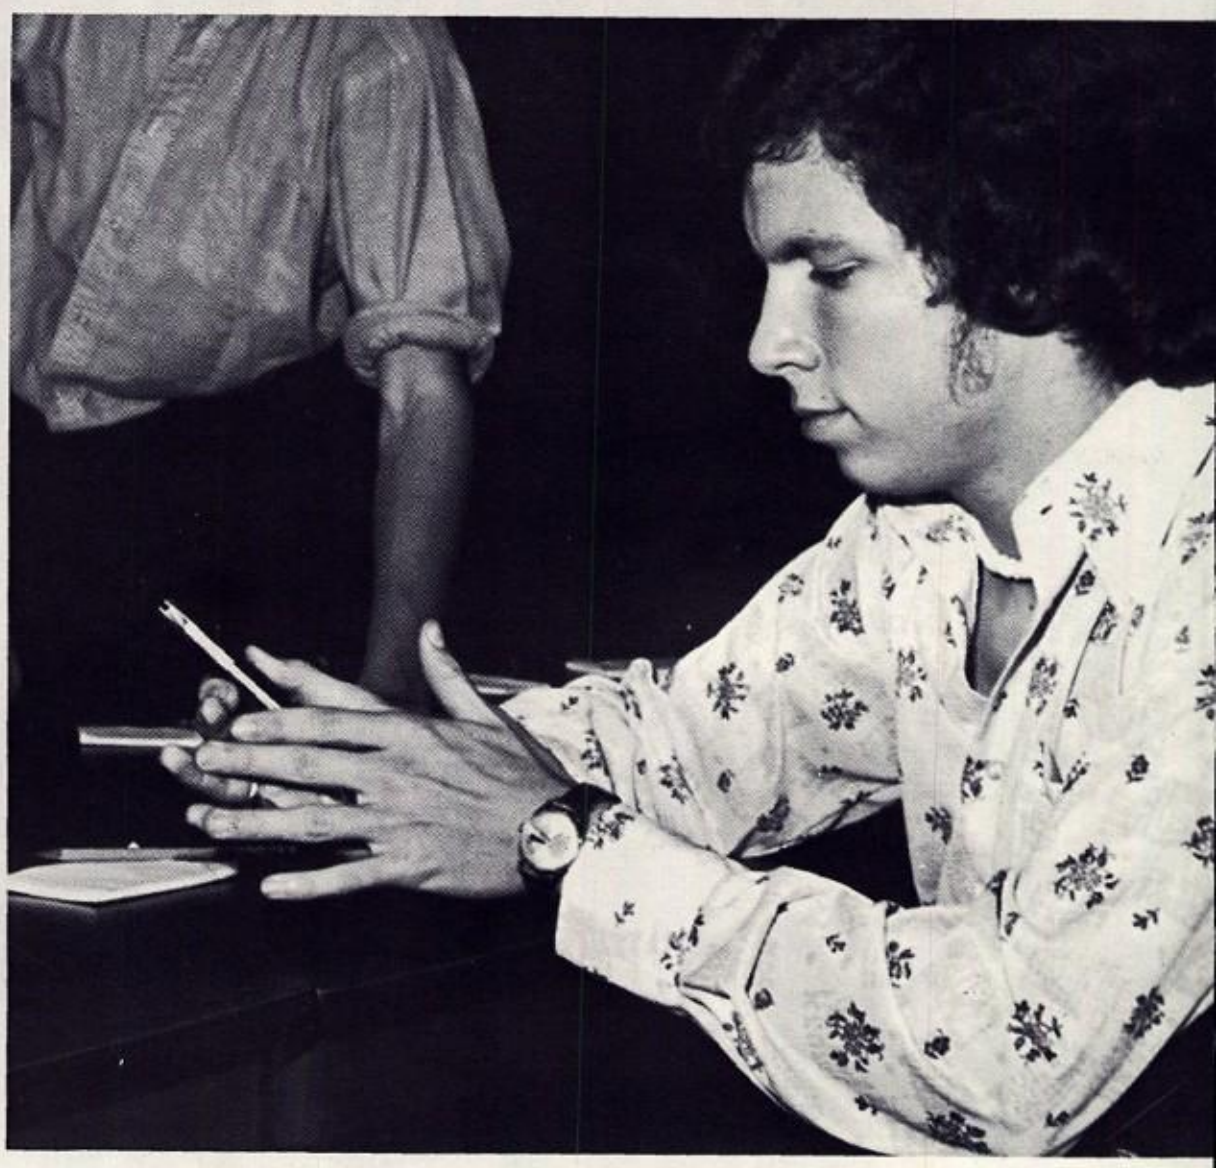
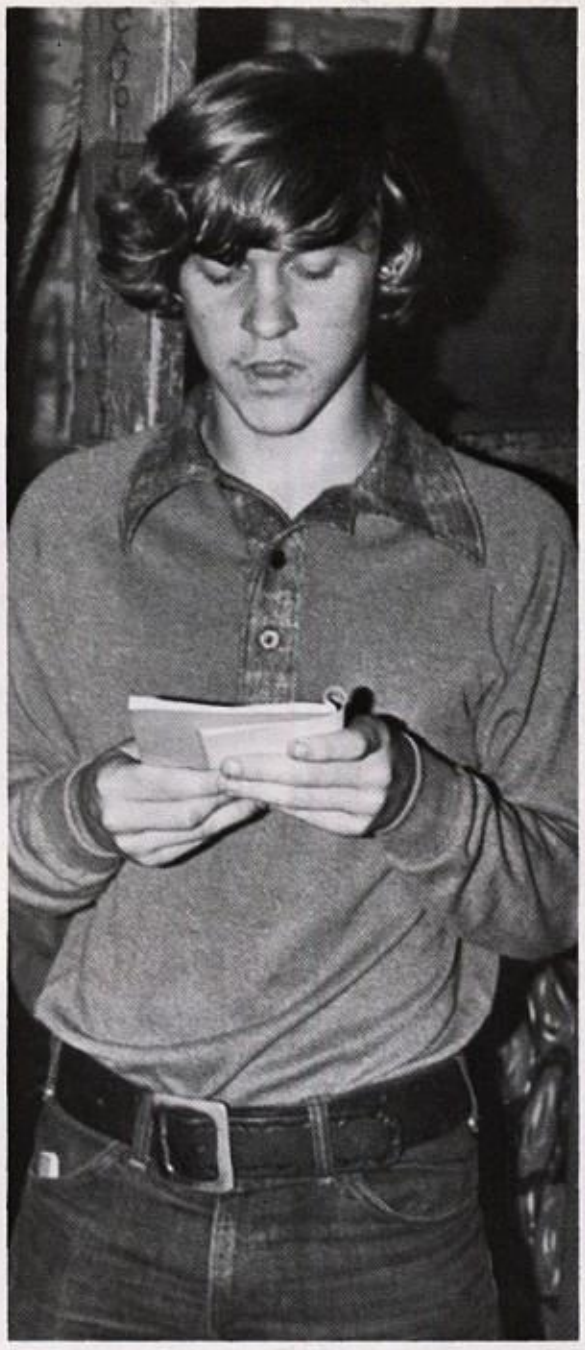
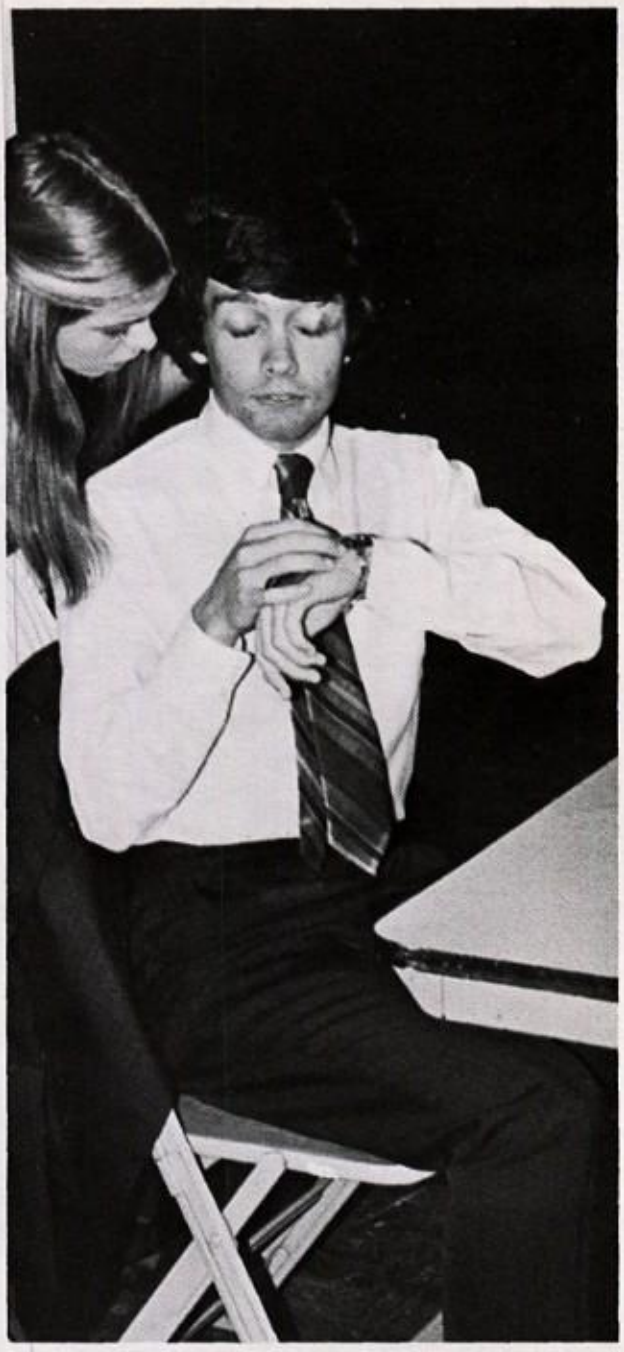
BELOW: In Twelve Angry Jurors, Ben Siegler was foreman of a jury on the case of a young boy accused of murdering his father. RIGHT: Don Anderson, first to believe in the boy's innocence, and Mark Kuchynka, who believed his guilt. Luann Gerth played an elderly juror and Tim Schwarz her younger counterpart.

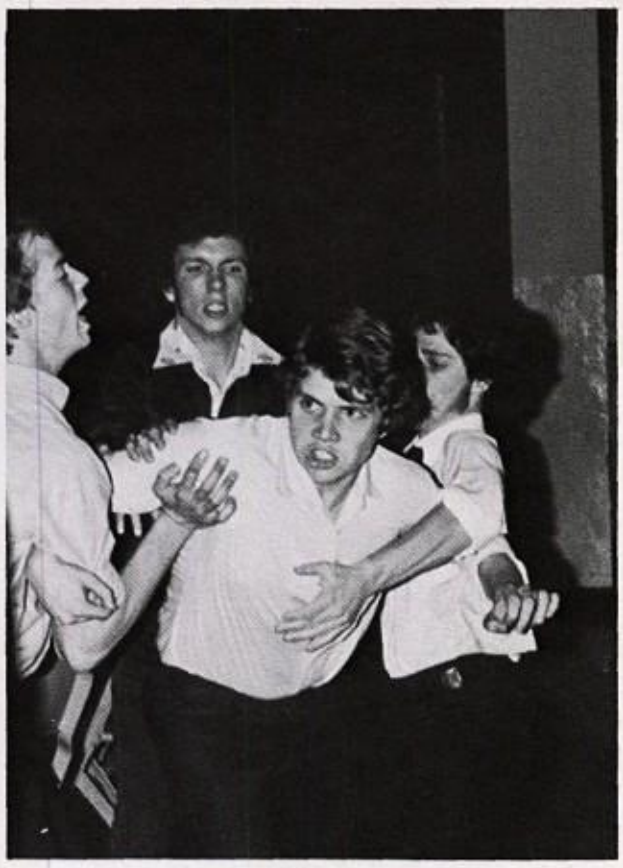












Frank McGee, a bigoted juror, siding with Kuchynka; and backstage, Gregg Jannusch reading small role of the judge. Tim McGlynn in an offbeat role played a meek juror for comedy relief. Don Anderson showing the murder weapon to city-girl Jacque Ferrario and rich socialite Debbie Rykoff. Tension broke into violence as jury members showed their true feelings.

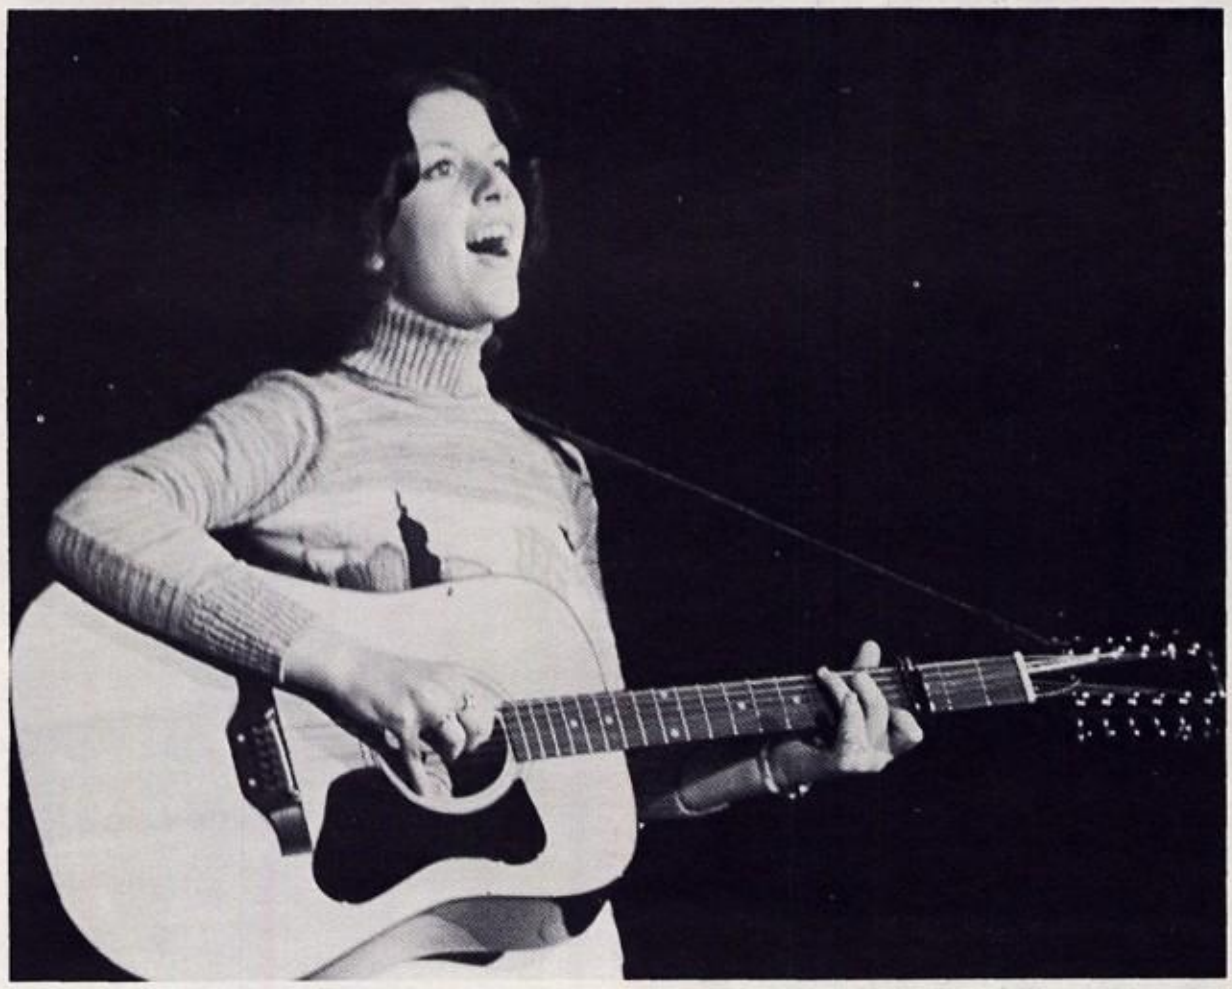
Cutting's ghost returns to haunt v-show



V-show started normally enough as ringmaster and circus acts opened The Greatest Show On Earth. After the madrigal's first two notes, however, lightning flashed, lights went out, and a mysterious man appeared on stage. He explained he was Charles Cutting's ghost, returned to produce his own show. The script was conceived by Ben Siegler and written by Ben, Mary Scollay and Jacque Ferrario. TOP: Jim McCutchen as Judge Cutting; Lee Langhorst, one with five other band members on stage for King Herod's Song; and Dave Mayfield confusing the audience with the explanation of this trick. ABOVE: Madrigal Terri Pistone singing At Seventeen, and Jane Burke as Ernestine soothing a disgruntled customer.

Play ball! Baseball leads off in sports

Baseball, first organized sport at Palatine, appears to have begun June 15, 1901. The Palatine Enterprise told of the game in which boys of Palatine defeated the Arlington Carnations 23-1. Again June 22, the Palatine Onwards won 18-8. On July 4, they again beat Arlington. The three wins set an undefeated record for the Palatine team. Due to this success, the boys reorganized in 1902.

The Mirror reported in 1912 that baseball's outstanding players were Leslie Freye, Johnny Gainer, Artie Wienecke, Bennie Blum, Paul Pohlman, Fred Harmening, Robert Brodhay, Walter Wittenberg, Bill Mair, and Olin Umbdenstock. A rule passed in March 1913 stated that any boy caught smoking in uniform would be suspended one game. With only one practice before its first game in May, the team lost. It had a 1-4 spring season and played four more games in fall. Bill Mair pitched. The first game in 1914 against Arlington was won 14-3 by Palatine.

Captain Lee Swick's 1920 team won only one game in the quad interscholastic league (QIA) of Maine Township, Palatine Township, Arlington and Barrington. Other team members were Ray Reese, Ed Garms, Lester Geiseke, Albert Schmidt, Elmer Wenegar, George Morris, Earl Blum, Eugene Perry and Herb Hackbarth. The 1922 team with Swick as pitcher had a good season. In an editorial in the March 1926 Spotlight, it is mentioned as "the last team that made its presence felt." The October 1927 Spotlight mentioned a seven game fall baseball season. The following fall, Palatine men were playing football, and baseball is not recorded again until the spring of 1949.

Claude Bailey joined the staff the fall of 1948 as varsity baseball coach, frosh-soph football and basketball coach and social science teacher. He started behind the wheel driver education, and in 1962-63 he became director of transportation and driver education for the district, a position he still holds.

Paul Schrage in 1952 was chosen conference third baseman in a 2-4 Palatine season. The 1953 record was 8-2. Palatine shared the conference championship in 1957 with Glenbrook with a 10-3 record.

Baseball was Palatine's most successful sport in 1964. Richard Radzak, captain and most valuable player, was named all conference for the second consecutive year. Second baseman Dan Leimann and centerfielder Ron Renske earned conference positions. The 1965 team had an unusually bad season losing twice as many games as it won. In 1966, the Pirates won the district crown, a feat accomplished again in 1967, 1969, 1975 and 1976. The 1966 team won its first game of the regionals from Elgin but lost its second game to Glenbrook North, which went on to be state champion. Ken Johnson that year was voted the William Dietrich award for best batting average (.327) and the Fred Herbertz award for most valuable player. Herbertz, 1951, and Dietrich, 1960, were killed soon after being graduated. Mike Ferguson led the 1967 team with a .371 batting average. Left handed pitcher John Dempster highlighted a 7-12 1968 season with a 2-0 no hitter over Conant.

Dave Hasbach, now playing with the Omaha Royals and substitute teaching at Palatine, hit a grand slam in a game against Glenbrook North, posted a 0.58 ERA and batted .303 in conference in 1970. Most valuable player of 1972 was Steve Garoutte, who struck out 76 men in 60 innings. Andy Knotek in 1973 batted better than .300. The VIPs gave the school a pitching machine. In 1974 Buddy Hughes was most valuable player, and his brother Robert was in 1975. The 100 percent award was named for their father, Arlie Hughes.

A column in the February 1926 Spotlight asked: Do you know that Palatine high school has had championship in track 1914, boys and girls baseball 1915, track 1917, debate 1918, track 1918, track 1919, basketball and baseball 1920, and girls baseball 1923? We include the quote to dispel the idea that track started on the field behind Palatine high school.

Athletics were entrenched long before the 1928 opening of Palatine High. It appears to have been run at first by an athletic association of students and faculty with chosen officers. It was customary for each student to give an annual membership fee of $1. Receipts came from these memberships, ticket sales and donations. Expenses included supplies and hall rent. Minutes of the board indicate that some expenses were met by the board. In February 1931, board minutes stated that instructors in athletics had requested the board to assume full charge of the athletic program.

Track became a stronger sport when it had the field behind the school. The 1930 Spotlight stated, "This spring finds the athletic field graded, tiled for drainage purposes and well on its way to completion." The 1931 Spotlight had a picture of William Ost, school board member, using a roller on the track. The track writeup included, ". . . first year on the new quarter mile track and field layout, which is admitted by rival coaches to be one of the finest in the state."

William Ost, who came to Palatine from Long Grove, was a miller and a very civic minded person. As a board member, he took great interest in the new school, its many offerings and athletics. He used to drive the players to away games. He was president of the board when he died April 26, 1943. The athletic field was dedicated to his memory at the 1943 commencement services.

Harold Meyer captained the 1931 track team, and sometime during the season, he performed in every one of the 14 track events. The 1932 team, again captained by Meyer, finished third in conference. Carl J. Megel was coach.

1932 was also the year that Eddie Hahnfeldt went out for track. That year and in the three that followed, Hahnfeldt smashed all records. As a freshman, he was second on the team in points scored. In 1933, he was high scorer. He seldom took less than firsts in discus and javelin. He won 11 medals in five big meets in 1934 including the state meet. He threw the discus and javelin for a third and fourth, both marks better than those which won firsts in 1933. Another record breaking year for young Hahnfeldt was 1935. He won three firsts in the Palatine invitational, three in the northwest conference meet, two firsts and a third at the Clinton Relays, and first in the javelin and discus at the Evanston district meet for the third straight year. In his third year at state, he won the discus championship with a throw of 135 feet 10 inches and took fifth in the javelin. At the Pekin Relays, he threw the javelin 190 feet 1½ inches. He went to Annapolis, where he set more records.

In the northwest conference in 1934 at Palatine, Palatine took third. It was third in the Palatine Relays in 1935. Bruce Koch, an inexperienced senior, won the discus throw in the district in 1937. Anton Cipri in the 440 and Roy Hahnfeldt with the discus qualified for state in 1940. Palatine won its relays in 1942 by winning the two mile and the mile medley relays and by placing second in the half mile. Dick Stinson, star of 1943, won the district pole vault title and qualified for state finals.

Palatine was conference champ from 1948 through 1957. It was second in the 1951 Palatine Relays and won the 1955 class B contest. Andy Merutka set a state record in the shot put in 1961 while Brad McCreery tied for third in pole vaulting. Joe Johnson coached the 1963 Pirates to firsts in the Lake Shore and DeKalb Relays, second in the district and third in the Palatine Relays. The following year, Pirates took first in the Lake Shore and second in district. They beat Barrington for conference title and finished fourth in state. Gordon Dreyfus was first in the state mile in 1965. The 1966 Pirates won the district and conference meets. Bill Bahnfleth broke the state record in the 440. Joe Johnson dubbed the 1967 track team the greatest in the school's history. It won the district and conference titles, the Palatine Relays and the Lake Shore meet. Bahnfleth was the first boy in Illinois prep history to successfully defend his state 440 title. He won seven state medals. Palatine took first in class B at the 1968 home relays. In 1970 Mark Visk was state champ in the two mile run, and Palatine won its relays. The 1971 Pirates took firsts in the Lake Shore, Palatine Relays and conference.

The football and track field at Fremd carries the name Hale Hildebrandt, but he was pure Palatine. Hale Hildebrandt, 1941, died July 1964. He was athletic manager his four years in high school. "The next thing to an assistant coach," said Mr. McElroy. After a year at the University of Illinois, he returned to Palatine and became an unofficial member of the coaching staff. He attended all practices of the varsity and served as timekeeper, scorekeeper or in some capacity at all sports events. The boys listened to his advice, and his high ideals rubbed off on them. Track was his great love. He was a member of the Palatine Relays committee for 15 years and an event official at the state track meet. Hale Hildebrandt freely gave 25 years to Palatine sports.

Visions of starting a basketball team cropped up in February 1913 when board president Peck suggested that a team be started, but no hall was available for practice or play. In November, however, Bill Mair, Walter Wittenberg, John Gainer, Les Frye and Paul Pohlman made up a team. Board minutes for September 1919 show the purchase of suits and ball for basketball and $15 for hall rent. The 1919-20 season opened a few weeks after the opening of school. Coach Kimball's team led by high point man Albert Schmidt had a 6-6 record. Under Mr. Kincaid, the 1927-28 Warriors had a successful season despite no gym. Basketball practice began on a dirt floor of the new gym, and Arlington's gym was rented for games and some practice. Visiting teams had complained of the cold and smallness of Seip's hall. In 1929-30, the team was fourth in district with Mr. Kincaid and several players out with mumps. Harris Helgeson was captain of the Maroon Warriors that season. The 1930-31 team tied with Arlington and Gurnee for conference first, and in 1953 when the new gym was being dedicated, this team was honored. In 1934-35, the Pirates posted an 11-1 record and tied with Barrington for the northwest conference championship. Captain Francis Reuse led the league with 125 points. Coach McElroy's 1936-37 team held its opponents to 17 points a game for the best defensive record in conference. Reason for this defensive strength was captain Tom Philbin, who played every game and was best guard in the conference. Palatine's heavyweights, equivalent to varsity, won district, and placed third in conference. In 1939-40 in uniforms of silver and maroon, Palatine advanced to the semi finals of the regionals, and Robert Hollinger was voted regional forward. In 1940-41, Palatine won its 10 conference games to become champions. The following year with Earl Stutzman as assistant coach, both varsity and lightweights were champs.

Earl Stutzman came to Palatine in 1941 as an industrial arts teacher and coach. He brought football back to Palatine and managed the relays for 22 years. In 1944, he succeeded Mr. McElroy as athletic director, and in 1951 gave up all coaching to meet the growing demands of the director's job. Mr. Stutzman set up the athletic departments at Conant and Fremd while serving as the director at Palatine. In 1967, Mr. Stutzman moved to the position of district director of physical education and athletics from which he retired in 1970. He was a frequent spectator at football games and was almost always at the Relays. He has moved to Virginia.

The worst basketball season was 1958-59, when varsity won one of 22 games, but the 1961-62 team brought a conference championship, the first in 20 years. Richard Kolze was coach. Ronald Kozlicki Palatine's most outstanding basketball player, set three records in conference in 1962-63: most points in a year, 362; 141 baskets in a year; and 884 north suburban conference points in three years. In three years he scored 1558 points. Junior Kevin McKenna made varsity in 1973-74. In three years of varsity play, he has 961 points.

Stutzman starts football again in 1942

Football was not a major sport at Palatine until 1942, but there is a September 2, 1916 entry in board minutes that mentions buying 15 jerseys and 15 suits for the football team. Gilbert Smith, 1930, captained the 1928 team, which he believes was the first uniformed team. Football was played on an empty field on Mozart between Colfax and Wood. The 1929 team consisted of 26 men under coaches Vervloet and Kincaid. There was no football in 1930, but it was back in the fall of 1931. By 1933, Palatine was being called the most improved ball team in the conference. Football was dropped after the 1935 season when only 15 boys averaging 135 pounds could get parent permission to play. Parent permission forms for athletes were board instituted in March 1930.

Mr. Stutzman in 1942 took a team of juniors and seniors, big boys with no football experience, and moved them on to second place in the northwest conference. Dick Welty's varsity team in 1952 won Palatine's first conference championship, and in 1954 Charles Feutz coached one of Palatine's finest teams with only a 7-6 loss to Glenbrook. The team had a star setup of Alan Eck, Doug Hildebrandt, Tom Hillesheim and Len Rohde.

Len Rohde, a farm boy, attended Palatine High from the fall of 1952 to the spring of 1956. He was in track for four years, football for three, wrestling for two and lettermen's club for three. When he was graduated from college, he joined the San Francisco 49ers with whom he played from 1960 to 1975, when he retired. He attended 1975 homecoming at Palatine and was honored by having his number 80 team shirt retired and by being given a Palatine sports blanket.

In the fall of 1957, Palatine in the tri-county conference posted a 5-2 record and tied with Glenbrook for conference second place. The 1961 team coached by Mr. Feutz and captained by Andy Merutka and Bill Migely finished 6-2 and conference second. Merutka made all state and set a rushing career record of 1823 yards. Key men in 1962 were George McCreery, Duane Brooks, Jack Frost, Mike Lang, Don Yokas and John Warder. Palatine tied Zion for north suburban third. The next year Brooks and Lang made all conference. The Pirates, who had been playing in the park under lights since 1948, moved to Fremd in 1964. Their record was 2-5-1, but Warder won conference scoring honors with nine touchdowns, five extra points and nine TD passes. He made state honorable mention.

Led by John Ekeberg, a Chicago's American back of the week, the 1965 team coached by John Ellis turned in an 8-0 record and took the mid suburban league championship, a new league to which Palatine still belongs. The 1967 team tied with Fremd for last place with a 1-7 season and the first homecoming loss since 1961.

Varsity tied for MSL third place in 1968 with 241 points, an average of 26.8 a game. Tom Patch set a record of 255 yards rushing in one game. He set another record with a 90 yard kickoff return touchdown. Phil Donahue made the Chicago area all stars.

Football returned to Ost field in 1969 and went under lights in October 1970. The 1972 team gained third place in the MSL with Jim Stauner an all conference and all state player. Steve Garoutte and Andy Knotek were all conference. The 1973 team ended its season 5-3 with Knotek most valuable. Jan Fitzgerald set a pass receiving record of 485 yards.

Although cross country track was mentioned in the 1925 Spotlight as being run in October, it appears that the first real cross country team was in 1940 with a 6-4 record. In 1941 James Langhoff was an individual champ. Then nothing until 1944, when Clarence Vogt and Milton Hapke were running first and second all season. Another lapse, and fall runners do not appear again until 1950. The 1952 team was rewarded with good runners such as Harold Reeve and Vogt. In 1957, Pirates won the tri county conference meet, and in 1960 varsity placed first in conference with a 10-0 record. In 1961, Pirates were first at the Midwest Invitational and conference. With a 12-1 record in 1962 and a 10-2 in 1963, Palatine again topped conference. In 1971, the team was conference and district champs, and in 1974 and 1975, the team was second in both.

Golf was off to a good start its first year by having Tom Smith, Charles James, Shelby Stewart, Harold Klapp and Charles Briggs win the 1950 northwest conference championship; and Palatine continued to win it the next five years under the coaching of Mr. McElroy and Arthur Zimmer. The next title came in 1960, really a co-title on a 6-6 record. The next year, the team captained by Jim Mellin won 15 of 17 matches. The golf team of 1962 had one of the best records of any team at Palatine. It won all of its games, took conference, district and sixth in state.

Paced by seniors Jim Arendt, Bruce Hayhurst and Greg Godbout and juniors Ted Wachs and Phil Edwards, 1964 Pirates posted a 6-1 but only fourth in conference. The next year, it was 6-2 for fourth with Bill Mellin most valuable. Most valuable Doug Miller led the 1966 team to the district crown and 14th in state. The coach was Len Fiocca. The 1967 team with coach Pete Lysaker finished 7-2 and tied Maine West for second in MSL.

Mr. Denny gave up coaching golf in the spring of 1973. Golf took up again in fall under Mr. Schultz and made the transition to a fall sport. Then the 1974 golfers became conference champs with an 11-1 conference record, and a frosh with pompons on his clubs, the name Zambole on his bag and the ambition to be a professional made varsity.

John Ellis brought wrestling to Palatine High in 1952. The season started with fundamentals practice on the football field, where boys learned the sport was different from that performed on TV. The first team posted a 2-11 record, but the 1956 team placed fifth in state competition with Len Rohde state heavyweight champion. Palatine set up a holiday tournament in 1955. In 1960, Palatine was first in conference, and the Palatine, Prospect and Libertyville tourneys. In 1962 Palatine was first in district and sectional. Again in1963 and 1964, Palatine was first in conference. In 1965, senior Seth Norton won state in the 145 pound class. His fourth year wrestling record ended 23-0-1, and he held district, sectional and state titles. His four year record was 102 wins, 16 losses and two ties. The next year, the team's record was 0-12. In 1973, Randy McAlister made state finals.

The generosity of the Charles Julians, who lived on the southeast corner of Hale and Lincoln,

Some painful memories, but most are good

quit her senior year, she promised to make it up to her mother if she could stay. She remembers all the paper she used practicing typing at school until almost 6 o'clock. Whenever she asked her mother for another dime for paper, her poor mother would say, "Not again."
Irma Olson, remembering 50 years back, wrote, "One spring when I was senior class adviser, we decided that Theophil Voecks, an accomplished pianist, should give a concert. He asked me to accompany him in a concerto. I still remember the job of helping to push a second piano into the room where we practiced for hours. Another gifted pianist in that class was William Schweitzer."
Gladys Schwartz, first home economics teacher, wrote, "Daniel Mason was band director and desired some flutes to round out his group. Miss Jumps and I purchased flutes and started blowing."
Howard Smith, 1928, laughs in remembering the time the team was stopped by a county policeman on its way to a game at Franklin Park. They were stopped for "no reason." Then in searching the car, he found the timer's pistol in Wally Sneible's bag. They were taken to the station in Morton Grove. Their call to Franklin Park reached a Palatine official, who got them released. The school board demanded an apology, and after each player had given his account of the episode, the policeman was dismissed.
Mercie Heise tells of a student, Mary Lou Link, 1939, who on a bad snowy day walked to school all the way from Schaumburg.

Fred Mattson, 1953, tells of a Friday afternoon snowstorm so bad the busses couldn't take students home. The boys stayed in the gym and slept on wrestling mats, and the girls were taken into homes. Women came in to make their supper, and Miss Heise and Miss Jumps made breakfast.

"We were like family," said 1931 graduate Orville Helms, whose wife, Bernice Wente said, "Those were the happy years." Parties were often all school affairs with one class doing the entertaining. In 1930 the frosh hosted the school at Deer Grove and furnished each one with a box lunch. An activity of great interest was the senior hunt. On a given night, the seniors would hide. Juniors would hunt. If the seniors could get to the ice cream parlor without being caught, the juniors had to do the treating.

Many remember the senior picnics. But tragedy marked graduation for the class of 1948. "A close class," Tom Kincaid remembers. Several were injured in an auto accident coming home from the junior prom held at Medinah country club. Then at the senior picnic at Lake Villa, Ed Koval, brightest in the class, drowned less than 30 minutes after the bus had left. Seniors took part in the class play covered with bandages, and graduation in the evening followed Koval's funeral.

The 1946 Spotlight, dedicated to those former students who served during World War II, listed those who had given their lives for their country: Harold Anderson; Wilbert Gieseke, 1940; Herbert Herr, 1943; George Herrmann, 1915; Philip Jones; Arthur North, 1937; John O'Brien, 1938; Francis Reuse, 1935; Gilbert Tarnow, 1933; Jack Thompson, 1933; Edward Weide, 1940.

That same year, seven servicemen qualified for diplomas. They were James Hauptli, Sterling Werner, Willard Hertzberg, James Langhoff and Albert Parkhurst.

Years later, another graduate, Paul Dolik, 1967, died in VietNam.

Without hesitation, Rick Dinkle, 1966, remembers being kept from speaking at graduation even though he had been voted to speak. He told his story in the Palatine Herald. His best experience was "the day I realized Mrs. Gieske was a real person."

Lorraine Flentge, 1951, remembers everyone had his own seat assigned for the year in Cutting hall. She remembers the snake dances that went all through the town. Theresa Boening, 1947, remembers the dance going across the tracks as a train was coming. The line broke with part on either side. It was scary.

Linda Verba, 1965, remembers that skirts had to be knee length. The test was to have girls kneel to see if the skirt touched the floor. A 1969 letter to parents attempted to clarify the dress code. It read, "Footwear in the classroom shall not be above the ankle. Clothing should not be distracting in color or style. Sideburns may be worn. The rest of the face is to be clean shaven as board policy rules out beards and moustaches. Tee shirts, sweat shirts and shirts lettered or numbered are not considered acceptable attire. All boys must wear socks."

We have given you a handful of memories and close with an often quoted class motto: The elevator to success is not running.
Take the stairs.

Academics change with time

through the 1930s. As Iris Haemker, 1939, and her husband, Otto Frohne, 1933, said "You had to take pretty near all the courses to be graduated." His brother took cooking because he didn't want Latin or business courses. Mr. Frohne took Latin to get enough courses.

Business courses were the first addition, and there was mention in 1913 of blindfold speed tests in typing and dictation to the machine. In 1923, the board gave Miss Corzine $100 to take students to state competition in Normal. In the late 1920s, Palatine competed commercially in the northwest conference. In 1929 it took second place, and the bookkeeping team took first. The typing class won first in the state mass test, making it seven years in a row. Commercial contests were reported in detail. Then in March 1931, conference dropped them because teachers did not stay to correct the work. Also reported were the winners of pins furnished by the typewriter companies.

French appeared about 1920 to join Latin. Miss Heise was the third French teacher. In 1950-51, she began Spanish. It was the most popular language in 1967. German came in 1959 and Russian in 1964. Russian did not last, and Latin was dropped in 1970.

English, a basic with a four year requirement, changed little until 1969 when the four year requirement was dropped. Senior electives were offered for those wanting a fourth year. In 1974, chronologically taught American literature gave way to semester electives for juniors. Mass media adds spice to sophomore English.

Science in some form was a basic offering, which grew with the years. In the 1970s, the course offerings expanded to include geology, astronomy, meteorology, oceanography and earth science, all with a strong emphasis on conservation and preventing pollution. Social implications of biology team taught by biology and history teachers was a 1972 innovation.

History, another basic, has grown into social science and includes psychology, geography, a basic, American history, a basic, Russian history and social science survey. Role playing is part of instruction.

Math, another of the basics, has fluctuated its courses to meet demand. Its offerings go from basic math and pre algebra through geometry to trigonometry, college algebra, calculus and computer use.

A name to remember was Mae Gibbs, 1934-57, who "made math exciting," and was dean of girls.

Girls started sewing on electric sewing machines in 1929 to meet a requirement of three dresses: one wool, one cotton and one silk. In 1933, the girls used scraps to make three quilts for the needy. They also gathered and gave baskets of food. After the arrival of the cooking equipment in 1930, they served hot lunches. They gave several dinners to make money with which to buy produce to can for later use in the hot lunch program.

When a new shop area was opened in 1952, auto shop was added the following year, and power mechanics and electricity were added in 1967. The 1970s brought the emphasis in woods on building construction and an assembly line making of toys. Agriculture, started around 1936. disappeared about 1952.

Although mention is made of distributive education in 1953, the explosion of work programs came in the late 60s with three teachers being shared with Conant in 1965-1966. Office occupations was an offering of business education in 1968. In 1972, the names changed, but the programs remained. Distributive occupation became the industrial cooperative program, and education for employment became home economics related occupations. Distributive education remained part of business ed and a cooperative work program was added in 1974.

A hectograph to help teachers prepare exams in 1913, telephone in 1915, $50 for library books in 1920, a mimeograph machine in 1925, a thousand school record blanks for permanent records in 1926 and a floor broom and lawn mower in 1929, random purchases taken from board minutes tell a little of the growth of the school.

This is Charles Cutting's school. His daughter in law tells how strong was the foundation. "He was brilliant and lovable, and he loved young people. He was a scholar and educator and a most beloved person. He was devoted to young students and wanted them to go on to get an education."

Marvin Plate, district 211's director of research and information and Mr. Teach.

Spotlights give activities

In 1929 Pauline Knapp, state manager of the Girls Athletic Association (GAA), organized a Palatine branch, and the girls were soon having playdays with girls from other schools. They competed in relays, volleyball, baseball, tennis, horseshoes and folk dancing. During the year, the girls took hikes, bowled, cycled and played basketball. They had sweaters. In 1934, Palatine cut its ties with the state, rejoined in 1937 and split again in 1968 because of the strict attendance rules put down by the state.

Although the Palatine branch has broken with the state several times, it has kept the GAA name for 47 years. In 1962 it set up a leadership program in which sophomores, juniors and seniors gave up a studyhall to help a physical education teacher. The last leadership group was in 1971. Being a member was considered an honor, and leadership girls wore gym suits different from those worn by other students.

The first cheerleading family were the Schroeders: Vernette, 1923-1927; Ralph, 1927-1930; Annette, 1955-1959 and Marsha, 1959-1963. Ralph, Vernette's brother, cheered along with Eddie Weber and Art Porep. They were elected by the students. At this time Barrington and Arlington Heights also had all boy squads. Palatine's boys wore maroon and gray and used megaphones.

For the years 1930-32, Kathryn Smith was Palatine's only cheer leader. A sentence in the 1932 Spotlight pays her tribute, "As cheerleader for the past two years, Kathryn has helped create school loyalty and pep during assembly programs and on the sidelines during athletic contests.

In 1935, eight cheerleaders won letters, four boys and four girls. By 1946 there were varsity and frosh-soph squads, and the words cheerleader had become one. The number has risen to 26 in 1958 and 29 this year. Annette and Marsha Schroeder carried on their father's tradition.

In 1962, the uniforms changed from maroon and grey to red and white, colors that are worn today.

Pompon girls first appeared at the 1966 homecoming game. Twelve girls were led by Marie Sigler, physical education teacher and dance sponsor. In 1969, GAA bought the girls pompons and equipment. Throughout the years, clubs have sprung up at Palatine because of student interest in a particular subject or activity. A walking club in March 1913 had its members on a six mile stroll every evening. That same March a declamatory contest was held to find talent to enter an area contest in Arlington. Competition in speech and drama has been fleeting through the years. Eight members of the class of 1936 became charter members of National Honor Society. Because membership is a percentage of the class, the number of members increases each year.

In 1935-36, Future Farmers of America organized. Club members were encouraged to plant vegetables or raise animals. In 1946, the club organized on a point system, but it disbanded in the spring of 1952.

Longer lasting was Tri-A the home economics club started in 1935 by Maxine Cook. In the 1940s Future Homemakers of America, a national organization sister to FFA, and a home economics club developed from Tri-A.

The Active Atoms Society of 1937 met a specific need as space science club does now. In 1949 an arts and crafts club was sponsored by Mr. Mills and Miss Jumps. It lasted a year, and another art club did not appear for twelve years.

Although Miss Heise had a Latin club in 1927 and a French club in the 1930s, they appear not to have lasted. Renewed interest in the languages in the mid 50s brought a French club in 1954 and a Latin and a Spanish club a year later. German club came in the 1960s as did a short lived Russian club.

And there were other clubs in the 50s: railroad, projectionist, monitors, Future Distributors of America, and an Ushers' club with uniforms. Electronics, chess, human relations, political science and guitar sprang up in the 60s with riding and ski clubs coming in the 70s.

Although not a school organization, parents and townspeople have been organized since 1929, when a Booster club was mentioned. A Palatine Hi Dads club was noted in 1953, and a Palatine Hi Parents group in 1959, which gave a dinner for all awards winners, were forerunners of more Boosters and now The Very Interested Parents (VIPs).

Girls swarm to interscholastic sports

urnished tennis courts for the alatine High students. The courts ere between the Julian home and he water tower, which was where he fire station now stands. Intra chool tournaments were reported n 1925 and 1926 with Fairie Belle Bennett the 1925 girls champ and Marjorie Zinn the champ in 1926. A spirited tournament between the wo gave the championship to Fairie Belle. In 1928 she was again the hampion together with Howard Smith. He went on to state competition.

The next mention of tennis was n 1936, when two courts were put p on the east side of the school, nd tennis is mentioned as a fall port. The 1939 yearbook shows a eam of four boys. Then tennis is ilent until 1961.

Interscholastic tennis began with Mr. Gavigan and the 1961 team win- ing two of six conference matches. n 1963 the team was undefeated in 1 dual meets and took conference econd. In 1964 a 13—0 record was ood for the conference first. ohn Gustafson had a 15-3 record n 1966, and the Pirates were in or second in the MSL. Matt Borman ad a first singles record of 7-1 n 1972 when the team placed third n conference with 11-3. In 1973 e improved his record to 21-8. He was a district semi finalist.

Gymnastics came in 1962 with im Brown as coach. He confined he team to underclassmen so as o develop a team. The team won even meets and lost only four s first year. Steve Applehans nd Skip Ray went to state and laced 11th and 17th. In 1963, Applehans took fifth on mats at state, giving the team a 14th. Other top performers were Ray, Steve Gibson, Dennis Weder, Tom Schreiner, Larry Frye, Bill Long, Bob Witmer, Bruce McIntosh, Tom Gliot, Fred Hodgson and Bob Harvey. The 1969 record was 8-8, and gymnasts took the district 211 title by defeating Conant and Fremd.

Pete Botthof, John Compton and Paul Mallow of the 1970 team went to state from a team that had placed fifth in the MSL with a 4-5 record. The varsity of 1971 placed eighth in conference with Jim Yaeger and Tom Schergen as co-captains. Coaches Leonard Witter and Larry Ciolkosz helped the 1972 team to a 9-10 record. Dick Alcina entered in state and placed 11th on the rings. Best school record was 15-5 in 1973. Ken Evenson took state honors placing seventh on parallel bars.

As early as 1917, Palatine girls were organizing basketball teams to play other schools. Madge Gibbs tells of the team's going to Chicago and some girls getting off the street car at the wrong corner. Girls also competed with other teams in baseball.

But the present interscholastic program started with tennis as a fall sport in 1968 in the north west suburban league. Candy Vogt in 1969 won seven matches while losing none. In 1971 Rita Sorrenti at 5-0 was most valuable. Claudia Borman was most valuable in 1972. In 1974, Colleen Clery, Leslie Winter and Marcy Mazzetta, and Maureen Gerdes and Mary Lundin went to state. Winter and Mazzetta came back with a first. Clery placed seventh. Clery with a 7-0 season was the first singles player to break Arlington's three year unbeaten record.

Archery and badminton were added in 1971-72. Kathy Seilheimer was the archery coach, and the team competed Tuesdays and Thursdays. In 1973-74, the archery team finished 4-3 and badminton 6-2.

Girls played field hockey in 1972, recorded two wins and two losses, and then played no more.

Gymnastics came on as a new sport in 1972-73 with 23 freshmen and three others. The team ended the season 0-5. The 1974-75 team captained by Barb Dillmann and coached by Mr. Schrammel placed sixth in conference.

Volleyball also began in 1972-73 and finished the season 3-8. Karen Dahmer coached the team. The 1974-75 team finished 1-8.

In the first year of bowling, 1973-74, the girls placed seven out of nine teams, with a 16-32 season. The team also placed seventh in 1974-75.

Basketball those two years posted 3-5 and 2-7 seasons.

Softball began in 1973 under the coaching of Miss Kostelnak. With 32 at bats and 12 hits and 9 runs, Cindy Charlier was most valuable in 1975. Nancy Barnes was leading hitter with 13.

The girls track team started in 1973. In the conference meet, Diane Cudney was third in the 220, and Cathy Aldana fourth in the 880. Kathy Kost was sent to state competition in 1974. She placed tenth in the 80 yard hurdle reaching the semi finals. The 1975 team placed seventh in conference led by Kathy Kost.

Our sincere thanks to all who aided us in this endeavor:
To Florence Parkhurst, a constant source of answers and a supplier of much needed materials;
To Gerald McElroy, who gave us his research on the history of Palatine High;
To the alumni and teachers who shared time, pictures and memories;
To editors and staffs of all Mirrors, Spotlights and Cutlasses from which we gathered history;
To Root Studio, at Palatine since 1934, for deliveries almost before pickups were made;
To Bob Hyson of Taylor Publishing, whose cheerful laugh convinced us that we would finish;
To Rick Cartwright for giving us a weekend of his time and skill to meet a crisis; and
To Mrs. Salzer for instilling in us a love of words, history and The Book to keep us going.
